FIGHT TO SERVE PAPERS ON MRS. EDDY

Effort to Bring Head of Christian Science Church Personally Into Court Begins in Earnest To-day—New Suit May Be Instituted Here.

All the energies of counsel for the relatives of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, who seek to secure an accounting of her affairs from the officials of the Christian Science Church, are directed to-day to securing service upon the nine defendants named in the bill filed at Concord. Lawyers Kelley and Martin are at work in the New Hampshire city to-day getting the necessary court papers to serve in Boston and other cities where there are defendants.

Four of the defendants are Boston men, Alfred Farlow, William B. Johnson, Joseph Armstrong and Ira A. Knapp, trustees of the First Church. Calvin A. Frye, Lewis C. Strang, Irving Tomlinson and Professor Herman S. Hering are in C oncord. Treasurer Chace lives in Fall River.

Senator Chandler told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day that the object in naming the nine defendants in the suit was to have revealed in court who are the men "hiher up" in the affairs of the Christian Science Church who have Mrs. Eddy and the aaffirs of the church completelyy in their grasp.

"I am firmly convinced that Mrs. Eddy is syndicated," said Mr. Chandler.

Three of the attorneys for the relatives of Mrs. Eddy, Martin, Howe and Kelley, left Concord at 10:15 o'clock to-day for Boston, where they will meet Senator Chandler. They are armed with all the necessary papers to begin service on the Boston defendants.

An effort will be made either to-day or to-morrow to secure service of the papers on Mrs. Eddy herself. General Streeter, her counsel, has already refused to accept any of the papers.

CHANDLER TO GET PAPERS.

The papers will be brought to ex-Senator Chandler, senior counsel for the petitioners, in Boston to-day.

Every effort is being made by the attorneys who are fighting for the relatives to find out how the money of the Christian Science Church is spent, who authorizes the expenditure and who pays the salaries. Up to the present time the lawyers have been unable to ascertain what salary is paid to any one of the officials. Demand will be made that the books be produced in court and the expenditures revealed.

Sanity Question to Come Up.

The question of Mrs. Eddy's sanity will be brought up. It has been said by her counsel, General Streeter of Concord, by her Secretary-Footman Frye and by her Assistant Secretary Strang that Mrs. Eddy is in the best of health, physically and mentally, and transacts her own business affairs.

Senator Chandler and the attoneys associated with him say that if this fact is true that Mrs. Eddy should be permitted to make public appearance in court and answer a few simple interrogations which will decide immediately the question of her sanity and her business capabilities.

At a conference of counsel to be held some time to-day the question of filing a suit similar to the one filed at Concord in the United States Court here will be determined.

"NO STOPPING NOW."

Former United States Senator Chandler, senior counsel for the petitioners, announced last night that the suit would be pushed despite all rumors of attempted settlement, that all the secrets of a financial nature regarding Mrs. Eddy's income and estate and the trustees' management would be laid bare, and that nothing could now possibly stop the plaintiffs from compelling the trustees of the Christian Science Church to give a full and accuraze account of their stewardship, and definitely settle forever the exact standing of Mrs. Eddy in her home at Pleasant View and her ability to handle her property.

Besides the Massachusetts suit about to be entered, Mr. Chandler also stated that suits may be entered in every State in the Union where Mrs. Eddy or the Christian Science Church is believed to hold property.

He further announced that Attorney Frederick W. Peabody of this city had been retained to assist in the preparation of the case in behalf of George W. Glover, and although Mr. Peabody was not present at the conference yesterday it is expected that he will be on hand to-day.

Declares All of Mrs. Eddy's Income Invested in Bonds

"All Mrs. Eddy's income is from her copyrights. This she has herself carefully invested.

"She has confined all her buying to four Boston bond houses of the highest character.

"The money has always been sent direct to Mrs. Eddy, and she has deposited it in bank here until she desired to invest it in bonds.

"In nearly every bank in Concord she holds a deposit, but it is by no means large in any instance."—Statements made to newspaper reporters by Fred N. Ladd, treasurer of the Loan and Trust Savings Bank of Concord and director of Mrs. Eddy's accounts.

District Attorney Moran To-day Starts

BRIBERY CHARGE PROBE

Investigates Editor M'Masters Story Involving Representative Lamoureux.

North Adams Legislator Denies With Vehemence and Declares He Is Victim of Plot.

William H. McMasters, editor of a weekly publication, appeared before District Attorney John B. Moran to-day to tell the county prosecutor of an incident that he says took place in his office in connection with the alleged solicitation of a bribe by Representatives S. J. Lamoureux of North Adams, and a prominent politician in the Western part of the State.

It is alleged that $180 was paid to Lamoureux and $20 to a lawyer to influence two members of the Judiciary committee to report adversely on the Long bill now pending, which provides for the cancellation of all leases held by the United Shoe Machinery Company.

Mr. Lamoureux while indignantly denying that there was any wrong about the transaction admits that he was paid the money by McMasters. He said that he understood it was a retainer for the lawyer who had first accompanied him to see McMasters. He says that he supposed that the money was to pay the lawyer for opposing the shoe machinery bill.He says he gave part of the money to his lawyer friend.

The names of the two members of the committee who were to be bribed were given, it is said, and McMasters was to find the money. He finally got it, and then laid a plot to catch the alleged bribe-takers at his office. Detectives were placed in a room adjoining the one in which McMasters met Lamoureux and his lawyer friend.

Lamoureux, according to the information made, inspected the wardrobe of the private office of Mr. McMasters, the lawyer remaining in an outside room. Then, so it is alleged, the $180 was given to Lamoureux. It consisted of one $100 bill, one $50 bill and thre $10 bills. The incident then closed, and the Representative and the lawyer departed. Mr. Moran was then notified of the consummation of the scheme, and the official wheels began to revolve. Then the story leaked.

What Lamoureux Says.

This is Representative Lamoureux's side of the case:

"I informed Mr. McMasters that I was opposed to the shoe machinery bill and was willing to aid in its defeat. I was accompanied by a young lawyer fro mHolyoke. When we reached Mr. McMasters's office it was after 8 o'clock. My friend had received some money from Mr. McMasters prior to the visit to the office.

"I remained in the room with Mr. McMasters, my friend going to an adjoining office. We had some conversation on the shoe bill.

"I again repeated that I was against the bill. Mr. McMasters passed me a roll of bills and I asked him what the money was for. Mr. McMasters replied that it was a retainer for my friend. I knew that my friend was well acquainted with the legislation pending and could be of some service on the matter.

"I did not know who furnished the money, but supposed Mr. MsMasters was acting for the opponents of the bill. I accepted the money for the sole purpose of retaining the lawyer.

"On leaving the office of Mr. McMasters I walked up Washington street. I offered the money to my friend, who took $50 from the roll, leaving a $100 bill and three $10 bills. My friend told me to keep the money for him, as if he had it in his pocket he would spend it."

After the matter became public Lamoureux got all the $180 together and deposited it at the Adams House.

CZAR IN HIDING FEARS FURY OF NEW REVOLT

TROOPS SWARM ST. PETERSBURG STREETS; FATE OF EMPIRE IN THE BALANCE.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 6.—With the streets swarming with troops, the guard having been doubled after the rioting that followed the first session of the Duma, in which 40,000 persons participated, the empire is on the verge of a gigantic revolution and reign of terror.

The fate of the empire practically rests on the happenings of the next twenty-four hours. The public does not know what has become of the Czar, and the belief is growing that he is in hiding, and that he will issue a decree dissolving the new Duma. This will be the signal for revolt.

The announcement that the Czar would receive in audience Feodor Golovin, the new president of the Duma, pending which no business would be transacted by the House, is believed to be only a ruse on the part of the Czar to gain time.

Troops Ready for Revolt.

That the troops have been prepared for the work of mowing down the people when the expected revolution begins is believed to be indicated by the lances carried by the mounted Cossacks. These long, deadly weapons, with their red pennons, were never before used in quelling street disturbances. In addition to the Cossacks, the Chevalier Guards have been detailed to aid the gendarmes in holding the people in check. The palace in which the Duma meets is surrounded by a strong body of troops, and no person is allowed to approach. Beyond the lines of soldiers are the sullen, defiant mobs awaiting only the signal from leaders to start the work of revolution.

The outbreak of thousands of the populace in defiance of the troops and the tremendous applause which greeted the cheers of the Social Revolutionists, indicated clearly that the under-current of feeling is a mighty torrent ready to sweep the empire with fire and sword.

40,000 in Riot Hunt Czar.

When the riots began red handkerchiefs were waved over the heads of the mob, and red banners appeared as if by magic. On these were the revolutionary motto, "Through fight our right." Cheers greeted the words of the speakers, and, beginning revolutionary chants, the mob, swelled to where the Czar's Winter Palace is situated, and thousands of workmen, started to march toward the central part of the city, where the Czar's Winter palace is situated.

In the meantime the authorities had hastily concentrated a strong force of gendarmes, which charged the head of the procession.

The gendarmes were reinforced by the Chevalier Guards. Finally a large force of Cossacks, armed with lances, arrived.

The spiteful red-pennoned weapons took all the heart out of the crowd, and the mobs were swept out of the streets before the leveled spears of the cavalry.

A number were seriously wounded by the lances.

Close Schools in Honor of Duma.

The schools were closed in St. Petersburg and throughout Russia in honor of the day. Demonstrative strikes were reported from several places in the interior.

At the first session the peasant element won a decided victory in the lower house in the election of Feodore Golovine, as president. Golovine is a Constitutional Democrat.

The first test vote of the Duma was taken on the final ratification of the president's election. The opposition parties combined their votes, and cast 356 for Golovine, whom the laborists and peasants had previously agreed to support. The government parties cast 102 votes for Khomiakoff.

While Prime Minister Stolypin was addressing the Duma Grand Duke Nicholas sat in the imperial box, and General Kuropatkin was in the strangers' gallery. Neither was generally recognized.

PRIEST HITS STAGE IRISH

Special to the Boston American.

RUTLAND, Vt., March 6.—A crusade against the comic impersonation of Irishmen on the stage was urged last night by the Rev. W. J. O'Sullivan, of Montpelier, in an address before the Ancient Order of Hibernians here. Father O'Sullivan advocated violent measures for their suppression. He said:

"The disgusting caricatures on the Irish are a calumny on the race. The way the Irishmen of New York have dealt with these stage creatures is effective.

"There are different kinds of hen fruit that do not cost much, but which are effective on such occasions."

BYWATERS CASE JURY TONIGHT

CULPEPPER, Va., March 6.—Unless the illness of Philip Strother should further delay proceedings, the case against him and his brother for slaying their sister's betrayer will probably go to the jury to-night.

Philip had recovered sufficiently yesterday for him to be brought into court in the late afternoon to hear the opening speeches for prosecution and defence. He is suffering with an attack of the grip, and is apparently exerting all his will power to prevent an interruption of the case and possible mistrial.

THE CAPTAIN WRITES.

Following the sea, a sailor encounters sudden changes of weather that produce catarrh and colds. Capt. W. O. Perry, of 81 Beckett St., Portland, Me., writes: "I have used different kinds of catarrh remedies, but have never found anything to equal Father John's Medicine for catarrh and colds."—Adv.

PLYMOUTH NOW IN WET COLUMN

PLYMOUTH, March 6.—A recount by the Board of Registrars last night reversed the vote for license at the recent town meeting from "no" to "yes." At the town meeting it was announced that the town had gone for no-license by 637 to 636.

THAW TRIAL RESUMES WITH MOTHER WAITING

JEROME'S PROTRACTED EXAMINATION OF WAGNER CONTINUED TO-DAY.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The agony of suspense of Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry K. Thaw, on trial for the murder of Stanford White, continued to-day as she waited to be called as a witness to help save her son from the electric chair and, if possible, from a madhouse.

District Attorney Jerome went to court to-day prepared to continue his long-winded cross-examination of Dr. Charles G. Wagner, the defence alienist who was on the stand all day yesterday. Jerome failed to catch him in a single admission that could be construed as damaging to Thaw.

Mrs. William Thaw arrived early and went to the anteroom set aside for witnesses, looking even older, more bent and more worn than she did yesterday. All day yesterday she waited in this room expecting to be called every minute to tell the history of her son's life and thereby lay bare her own life and the lives of her kinsfolk.

NERVED FOR HER ORDEAL.

All yesterday Jerome fired away at Dr. Wagner, getting nothing from the witness that would materially aid the prosecution, but laying himself open on more than one occasion to rebukes from the court.

While all this was going on Mrs. William Thaw sat in the ante room, her head bowed and cheeks bloodless. She had nerved herself up to the ordeal, and she wanted it to begin and to be over.

As time dragged Mrs. Thaw's nerves almost gave way. Her suffering was much keener than that of her son, who sat before the jury in the court hearing himself called crazy one minute and sane the next, and knowing the twelve men who looked down upon him from the jury box might send him either free into the world or to Sing Sing's death house.

Again to-day Mrs. Thaw must remain in the witness room until the District Attorney has asked Dr. Wagner more hypothetical questions.

WEIGHED HEAVILY UPON HER.

Dr. Wagner has certainly paved the way for an easier examination for Mrs. Thaw than has been expected. Asked by the prosecutor if he had gone into the family history of Thaw when he made the examination of him on October 27, Dr. Wagner answered that he had found nothing that was of material importance on which to base a scientific opinion that Thaw was insane.

Mrs. Thaw has been in great fear that her testimony would not work to the advantage of her son. The thought that the history of her own family and the pre-natal influences to which Harry Thaw was subjected might open the way for him to be sent to Matteawan Asylum has weighed heavily upon her.

NEARLY A BILLION LOST IN BIG STOCK SLUMP

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Stocks were very weak at the opening to-day following the big break in the market yesterday in which nearly $200,000,000 was cut from the selling value of stocks. Canadian Pacific and Amalgamated were weakest at the opening.

Everybody seemed to be selling stocks on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. It was a rich man's panic, the leaders in high finance starting the unloading of stocks.

Two million shares were traded in during the day making the most active day of the year on the exchange. Violent declines ruled and many new low records were made.

It is estimated that yesterday's losses amount to $100,000,000 divided up between 180 different stocks. J. P. Moran's brokers started unloading and the Rockefeller followers were compelled to buy at a loss.

The small speculator has kept away from Wall Street for the past eight months, during which there has been a steady decline in prices of all stocks. The leaders have been doing all of the trading, but they were unable to prevent yesterday's slump.

Wall Street blames agitation for the decline. Harriman's Union Pacific, against which there has been opposition from the public, has alone lost $20,000,000 of stocks during the past eight months.

SUN SPOT SNOW STORM RAGES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 6.—An electrical blizzard, said to be due to sun spots, threatened to tie up traffic in New York city to-day. The strangest meteoric phenomena accompanied the snow storm, which set in suddenly and unexpectedly after midnight.

In certain sections of the storm zone there were loud cracks of thunder following the most vivid flashes of lightning. Three inches of snow fell.

This strange electrical blizzard fulfilled the prophecy of Professor John A. Blashear, the noted astronomer and discoverer of sun spots. He observed Monday that the sun spots were breaking up, and then said that an electrical storm of unusual characteristics would break over this part of the country by Tuesday night.

EXPLOSION KILLS 9.

EL PASO, Texas, March 6.—Two explosions in the rock quarry of the Chihuahua and the Pacific Railroad at Sandoval, Chihuahua, killed and buried nine men and seriously injured nine others.

FRYE SWEARS MRS. EDDY HAS NO STOCKS · AUDITOR SAYS SHE HAS BONDS

Return to Concord Assessors for Taxation Purposes Declare Christian Science Head Is Worth But $54,850, Although Her Own Counsel Admits She Has a Fortune of $300,000.

CONCORD, N. H., March 6.—Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, according to the return of her property made by Calvin Frye, her footman-secretary, for taxation purposes to the assessors, is worth $54,850. Upon this she pays taxes to the amount of $1,191.

In this inventory the value of stocks in bank, in and out of the State, and the amount of money in bank on interest is given as "none."

According to counsel for the petitioners in the receivership proceedings Mrs. Eddy has for some time had on deposit at the State Central Bank in this city at least $1,000,000 in cash and quick assets.

Fred N. Ladd, treasurer of the Loan and Trust Savings Bank of Concord, auditor of Mrs. Eddy's accounts, declares in an interview that all of Mrs. Eddy's income for years has been invested in high-class bonds.

Copy of Frye Inventory.

Here is the inventory which Mr. Frye, acting as Mrs. Eddy's agent, is alleged by the assessor for her ward, John H. Quimby, to have made in 1906:

Pleasant View	$18,000
Tuttle lot, adjoining	1,000
Four horses	500
Two cows	50
Carriages	1,200
Value of stock in public funds	35,000
Value of stock in bank or other corporations in this State	None
Value of stock in corporations out of this State	None
Money on hand at interest or on deposit in or out of this State	None
Total valuation	$54,850
Total taxes paid	1,191

Josiah E. Fernald, president of the State Capital Bank, has publicly stated that for twenty years Mrs. Eddy has had funds on deposit there.

He did not state the amount.

It may have been $100 or $1,000,000.

That, well known lawyers say, is immaterial.

The material fact is, and it seems to be indisputable, according to the testimony of her closest friends, that she had funds in the State Capital Bank at a time when she is alleged through her accredited agent, Calvin F. Frye, to have returned to the assessors a sworn inventory in which she denied having money on hand at interest or deposit.

Assessor Quimby, who declares that the above inventory was filed out in proper form and signed by Mr. Frye, as Mrs. Eddy's agent refused to show the document, declaring that he had mislaid it.

The law says that an inventory must be furnished by the taxpayer, and provides a fine for failure to comply.

It also provides that a taxpayer swearing to an inventory which is not true is guilty of perjury. And under the same law it is the duty of the assessor to require the inventory every year.

If Mrs. Eddy's secretary, Calvin A. Frye, swore to the correctness of an inventory on the last of April last year he took oath to the following facts:

That Mrs. Eddy had no money on deposit in banks or elsewhere, in or out of this State, except savings banks; that she had no money on hand on April 1, 1906, including checks payable on that date and drafts and notes due at that date, and that the total amount of her taxable personal property in that year was less than $40,000.

Mrs. Eddy's Tax Inventory

Inventory which Frye, acting as Mrs. Eddy's agent, is alleged by the assessor for her ward, John H. Quimby, to have made in 1906:

'REMARKABLE IN MIND AND BODY FOR HER MANY YEARS'

CONCORD, N. H., March 6.—Attorney Sherman Burroughs of Manchester, N. H., one of the prominent lawyers of New Hampshire and a distant relative of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, who was once invited to consider the proposition of becoming a reader in a Christian Science church, although not a Christian Scientist, spoke in the highest terms of Mrs. Eddy and said when he last had business relations with her she was a remarkable woman in mind and body considering her age. He said:

"I had many talks with Mrs. Eddy at the time, and in a general way knew her affairs very well. I understand that it has been told that she confessed to me of possessing great riches. As a fact, I wish to register a firm and unqualified denial. She never told of possessing great wealth in dollars and cents.

"Since that time I have seen Mrs. Eddy many times in a casual way and I have no reason to believe otherwise than that the representations made by her intimate friends regarding her capacities are anything but the truth."

Asked about the legal aspect of the prosecution and the possibility of throwing it into the United States Court if the respondents seek to delay, Mr. Burroughs said: "My understanding is that under the New Hampshire practice an attorney can compel depositions before a justice of the peace and even compel Mrs. Eddy to testify in court, although for the purpose court might be held in her own library.

"It is equally possible, as I understand the complex nature of the service, for the respondents to evade this procedure through application to the United States Court, by which possibilities of delay are, of course, numerous."

WILL RULE UNTIL SHE DIES---BAKER

CONCORD, N. H., March 6.—The defence of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy by former Congressman Henry M. Baker published in the BOSTON AMERICAN made a decided stir here.

Seen at his rooms in the Eagle Hotel last night Mr. Baker said he thought the truth wouldn't hurt.

And he added: "I tell you again that Mrs. Eddy will rule her home and her employes and subordinates until she dies.

"Also, I submit, inasmuch as all her income reaches her through one channel and the statements rendered by that source, together with her bank account and Frye's bank account, are audited by one of the most capable men in that business, that Mrs. Eddy is not being robbed. Nobody in New Hampshire could be found to say that Auditor Fred Ladd was dishonest or incompetent. That, to thinking minds, ends that problem right there.

"The next item forced upon my attention is that Mrs. Eddy and her friends hastened to execute the trust deed when threatened with the action of her son.

"If I have said it before, I repeat, that Mrs. Eddy executed the trust deed on Wednesday or Thursday and didn't hear of her son's action until Saturday. She had just previously been quite busy paying his debts in Dakota.

"Mrs. Eddy does business in only one bank. Let us hear if any other bank does business for her. I say one only, the State Capitol Bank.

"They say she has a million on deposit. I suggest that inquiry be made concerning money on deposit in the said bank. The bank officers would smile, I think, at the suggestion."

OLD ANTAGONISTS FACED IN FIGHT

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., March 6.—General F. S. Streeter, personal counsel for Mrs. Eddy refused yesterday to accept service on behalf of the other defendants of papers in the Glover suit.

An "inspired" mouthpiece of Mrs. Eddy said that it is the wish of that lady that each of the defendants provide himself with what legal talent he desires, but that all the lawyers work under the general direction of General Streeter.

Concord glimpses on the horizon symptoms of an oncoming legal battle in which spectators with a taste for conflict may take great joy.

In one corner, General Streeter, late of the B. & M. In the other corner Senator Chandler, always against the B. & M. Old-time antagonists in the amphitheatre again, each battling as joyously as of yore but each in a cause entirely apart from the old feud.

By court rule, an answer to the present proceedings must be entered on April 2.

The service of the summonses to the trustees on behalf of the petitioners must be made by March 13.

The Massachusetts respondent, Alfred Farlow, may be served with a New Hampshire summons only if he is found in New Hampshire. On his visit last Saturday, Mr. Farlow remained in Concord but two hours. Should he accept New Hampshire service it might simplify the work of the prosecution. It is believed here that the respondents course will be one of inaction and that Mr. Farlow will do nothing to facilitate the work of the prosecution.

Obstacles were placed yesterday in the way of the plaintiff in the Mrs. Eddy suit by Assessor Quimby, who refused to permit an examination of the tax register. This examination was sought in an effort to prove that much of the property said to be owned by Mrs. Eddy is in reality held in the name of Calvin A. Frye. A court order will now be asked for to compel the production of the assessor's books. Until the presentation of such an order the assessor, who is friendly to Mrs. Eddy, refuses to disclose the contents of the record without Mrs. Eddy's permission.

ROUSES INTEREST IN N. H. INSANITY LAW

CONCORD, N. H., March 6.—The Eddy case has stirred inquiry here as to what constitutes insanity under New Hampshire law. There is no statute defining insanity and "Morrison's New Hampshire digest" is generally accepted. It says: "Every person is to be deemed of unsound mind who has lost his memory and understanding, by old age, sickness, or any mental infirmity that renders him incapable of transacting his business and managing his property."

Two New Hampshire cases cited in the digest are: Dennett vs. Dennett, vol. 44, page 531, and Roberts vs. Baker, vol. 63, pages 332 and 335.

A prominent Concord man said to-day that this question over Mrs. Eddy's condition arose out of a difference of opinion between her close friends and others as to how old and feeble one could be and not be called insane.

"There is no question," he added, "but that Mrs. Eddy has failed greatly in the last few years.

"There is no doubt but she always had certain notions that in common people would be called 'queer.'

"One is her notion on control of mind over mind. She feared that her son had been so influenced.

"Perhaps she is quite right in theory. She has many advanced ideas. Some think she is insane because of these things while her other intimates contend that she is right in a broad sense and that if she is not right, then it is merely an eccentricity.

"I am satisfied that she is both brave and timid. She does great things and I have seen her fear small things. About two years ago she drove to a gathering. The crowd closed in to see her because it had been put forth that she was ill.

"As she drove into the crowd she said nervously to Mr. Frye, in a tone loud enough for those about to hear: 'Now do be careful,' and she put up her hand, which wavered a trifle either from age, fear or as a mechanical gesture. She was always pale and never robust. Now she is paler and thiner."

KNOWS NOTHING OF MRS. EDDY'S WEALTH

Alfred Farlow, head of the publicity department of the Christian Science Church and one of the defendants named in the bill of Mrs. Eddy's son, last night gave out the following interview in correction of certain statements that had been ascribed to him:

"Someone informed me that certain pieces of property owned by Mrs. Eddy had been valued at the sum of $88,000, and inquired of me if this valution were correct, to which I replied that I considered it a fair estimate of that property. Through some misunderstanding, the papers afterwards reported me as having stated that Mrs. Eddy was worth $88,000. As a matter of fact, I know nothing whatever about Mrs. Eddy's wealth, though possibly I might guess more accurately than some who have less knowledge of her income and her disbursements.

"I might add that I have no desire whatever to know anything about Mrs. Eddy's private affairs, except to be assured that she is provided with all the comforts which are due so worthy a woman.

"A question which I understood to be an inquiry as to the aggregate amount of real estate owned by the Christian Scientists in general: that is, by the Mother Church and the branch churches, was propounded to me, to which I replied that it had been approximated at nine or ten million dollars, and some had placed it beyond that. Since then papers have contained an alleged statement from me that the surplus fund of the Mother Church in Boston is ten millions. I have expressed no opinion whatever as to the cash balance of the Mother Church."

JUDGE DEAF TO PLEA OF COAL MEN FOR DELAY

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, March 6.—Declaring that the coal dealers of this city indicted by the special Grand Jury for conspiracy had had a month's notice of the Grand Jury's investigation and that there might be indictments as a result of the inquiry, Judge Mumford peremptorily fixed Thursday, March 14, as the date when an appearance must be entered by the defendants.

Judge Mumford declared that all the defendants, corporations and individuals must appear on that date. Great surprise was manifested yesterday when the five Coal Trust attorneys, with Dexter B. Potter as their spokesman, apepared in the Superior Court and stated that they did not appear as counsel and were not ready to enter any pleas to the indictment of their clients.

Couldn't Decide on Advice.

Attorney-General William B. Greenough declared that it was the day fixed for the individuals and corporations under indictment for conspiracy to plead. Mr. Potter stated that the attorneys had not been able to decide since the indictments were found last Thursday morning what advice to give their clients.

"None of us supposed that any indictments would be found, and we were surprised by the work of the grand jury," said Mr. Potter. "We need more time to look up the authorities. It took the State a month to find out whether the defendants were probably guilty."

Judge Mumford stated to Mr. Potter that the defendants had certainly had notice from the beginning of that month of investigation that there might be indictments as the result of the inquiry.

Mr. Potter stated that he was very busy with engagements in civil cases.

"I supposed that criminal matters took precedence over civil cases," said Attorney-General Greenough.

Judge Acts Peremptorily.

Judge Mumford stated that he desired to get through with the preliminary matters in connection with these cases before he was transferred from the criminal division of the court to some other department and peremptorily fixed Thursday, March 14, as the time when appearance must be entered by the defendants.

"With the array of counsel representing the defendants, I think that will be sufficient time in which to find out what the law is in relation to these cases," concluded the Judge.

SHAW MATINEE FOR MINISTERS

NEW YORK, March 6.—There will be no occasion after next Wednesday for the New York clergy to judge without having seen the merits or demerits of "Mrs. Warren's Profession."

A. H. Woods, who will be responsible for the return to Broadway on Saturday night of George Bernard Shaw's much discussed play, has taken away the breath of his fellow managers by announcing that on Wednesday he will give a special clergymen's matinee. More than 1,000 invitations to the "sky pilot service" have been sent out.

Woods says he is confident that the Shaw play has been "condemned unheard."

EDWARD REX HAS AUTO VEX

BIARRITZ, March 6.—King Edward's chauffeur, when he arrived here last night with the royal automobile, left an oil can on the machine. A government agent examining it let his lantern fall on the can. The oil exploded, setting fire to the automobile, which was destroyed.

King Edward is very much vexed at the accident.

SOLD RUM IN MILK CANS.

PORTLAND, Me., March 6.—The deputy sheriffs this morning arrested a milkman who, ostensibly, was delivering milk to his customers, but was really dispensing whiskey from innocent-looking cans inside of which were filled glass bottles.

ACCUSE MAN OF $4000 FORGERY

Frank J. Long, twenty-eight years old, of No. 23 Stearns street, Newton, who has earned quite a reputation about town as a sporting man and a great spender, is under arrest charged with forgery.

Long appeared at the Federal Trust Company on February 18 with an order for $4,000 bearing the name of Mrs. Winifred Clark of Blakeville street, Dorchester. There appeared some discrepancy on the signature and the cashier called Mrs. Clark up on the phone. When he returned Long had gone.

CHILD ALMOST A SOLID SORE

From Skin Disease from Birth Until Six Years Old—Father Spent Fortune on Her Without Benefit—Old Doctor Suggested Cuticura, which Cured Her in Two Months, Leaving

SKIN SOFT AS A BABY'S AND WITHOUT A SCAR

"I have a cousin in Rockingham Co. who once had a skin disease from her birth until she was six years of age. Her father had spent a fortune on her to get her cured and none of the treatments did her any good. Old Dr. G—— suggested that he try the Cuticura Remedies which he did. When he commenced to use it the child was almost in a solid scab. He had used it about two months and the child was well. I was there when they commenced to use your Cuticura Remedies. I stayed that week and then returned home and stayed two weeks and then went back and stayed with them two weeks longer and when I went home I could hardly believe she was the same child. Her skin was as soft as a baby's without a scar on it. I have not seen her in seventeen years but I have heard from her and the last time I heard from her she was well. That is where I became acquainted with Cuticura. I hope this may be of some service to you in the future. Mrs. W. P. Ingle, Burlington, N. C., June 16, 1905."

Thaw Jests with Death as Expert Fences with Jerome

Prisoner's Mother Waits All Day for Summons to the Chair of Torture, Her Eyes Closed and Her Lips Moving in Ceaseless Prayer.

BY
Ada Patterson

Copyright, 1907, American-Journal-Examiner.

THERE is an attitude prescribed by stoics known as the jest with death. Harry Thaw assumed it yesterday when, while his life—certainly his liberty to live the life of the ordinary man, without duress of iron bars at windows, or watchful eyes of omnipresent keepers—hung as by a hair, he laughed at the District Attorney.

"Do the prisoner's eyes glare now as they glared when you saw him in the Tombs?" the official demanded.

"I am more familiar with the back of Mr. Thaw's head as I have seen him in court," was the answer, enveloped in ice.

"But you have occasionally met his eyes?" insisted the prosecutor.

"A few times."

"And did his eyes then glare as they did when you saw him in the Tombs?"

"They present the same general appearance." With this answer, that might mean much or little, the fuming official had to be content. And the prisoner laughed.

Harry Thaw smiled frequently yesterday. A woman told me she thought his smile a charming one. I should not have so described it. Negatively, it was becoming in that it was accompanied by none of the usual facial contortions, the breaking up of the countenance into a weird flotsam and jetsam of features. But a smile, like a gesture, to be effective, should mean something. It should be a sudden illumination, bespeaking a new light of intelligence upon a theme under discussion or consideration, or should be the disclosure of pleasure or genial mirth.

One Never Knows Meaning Of Harry Thaw's Smiles.

One never knows what Harry Thaw's smiles mean and yet they are subtle. They are mechanical, a parting of the lips, showing fairly regular teeth; a swift, passing gleam of the eyes, but never translatable into terms of mirth or pleasure or enlightenment. Neither are his smiles sinister, like those of the man who smiles in anger. They are like his life, like himself, in all things save the death-dealing impulse that visited him, that night of June last year, amid the dancing and the lights, the flutter of bright gowns, the laughter, the clink of glasses and the music on the Madison Square Roof Garden—ineffective.

His laughter was similar. He bent his shoulders forward, drew his head against them, turtlewise, and emitted a short, explosive laugh. It was a rare joke to Harry Thaw that there was "a glare about his eyes," had ever been a glare about his eyes.

And the world-old law was set again in operation. Those about us give back to us what we give. While District Attorney Jerome, having savagely declared that he would keep Dr. Wagner, the expert alienist for the defence, on the stand "until he got something out of him," and the alienist, with two lines of frowning determination between his brows, endured with what patience he could his unnecessary baiting, about the half empty courtroom ran a restlessness that found its vent in sly fun.

Clara Morris Criticizes Cut of Jerome's Hair.

Juror Dennee, the Southern railroad man who, although he has perforce sat mute through the four weeks of his imprisonment in the jury box, has in some telepathic way communicated his spirit of good will throughout the big room and made friends of those who frequent it, smiled back to a solicitous inquiry of eyes.

Clara Morris noted certain peculiarities about the manner of the District Attorney's hair cut. She raised her lorgnette for a closer survey.

"It grows so far up on the back of his head. Why don't the cartoonists have fun with that hair? It looks as though rats had nibbled it."

The wave of relaxation extended to Dr. Carlos McDonald, who has sat day after day, looking as grave and judicial as Judge Fitzgerald himself. The eminent alienist bethought himself of a funny story and he whispered it to Attorney Gleason across the interposing barrier of railing.

The badgered alienist, Jerome and the judge upon the bench were the only solemn figures in the courtroom. Even Congressman Littlefield of Maine, a visitor for the day, relaxed from his iron-gray severity of costume and hair, moustache and manner, and smiled in consonance with the general lightness. He listened to one joke from a learned man within the rail and told a better one.

Judge Tries Vainly to Curtail Cross-Examination.

Yet from half past one until a quarter past five the cumbersome machinery of the law creaked on its way. Justice Fitzgerald attempted to curtail the cross-examination by all but arbitrary methods. He suggested short cuts. He sustained objections made by Mr. Delmas. But the District Attorney persisted by a thousand questions in his effort to make the alienist say that the prisoner was sane when he killed Stanford White or was insane at that moment. Having achieved this, he must in manner dramatic demand the appointment of a lunacy commission. This opportunity the alienist did not give and will not give. Gibraltar presents to the futile waves of the Mediterranean no more forbidding rock than he to the prosecutor. The jury tried to follow sympathetically Mr. Jerome's futile beating against the Gibraltar witness, but it failed.

But across the tedious proceedings, the day so expensive to the city's taxpayers without any apparent fruit of value, there fell the shadow of a weary, waiting woman. All day the elder Mrs. Thaw had waited for the summons to the chair of torture. All day, while the machinery of the law creaked painfully because unoiled by celerity, over and over her thoughts trod the circle of pain.

"What may I tell that will save my son from death in the electric chair? What must I not tell that would send him to a mad man's cell?"

Those who have watched say that for answer she turned to a higher court. Her eyes closed and her lips moved in ceaseless prayer.

The day of acerbity for witness and cross-examiner, of jest for prisoner and his watchers, was one of anguish and prayerful waiting for the prisoner's mother.

CURRENTS OF TWO TRAGEDIES CROSS

BY Dorothy Dix

Copyright, 1907, American-Journal-Examiner.

ANOTHER day of ceaseless iteration and re-iteration of practically the same questions on the District Attorney's part, and of wordy explanations and evasions on the part of the learned alienist in the witness chair that left everyone in the court room feeling as if they had all of the fifty-seven different varieties of insanity, sums up yesterday's history of the Thaw case.

The alienist for the defence still maintained at the going down of the sun as he had at the rising thereof, and as everyone knew before hand he would, that the prisoner was mad as a March hare at the time he committed the crime, and of a perfect reasonableness now.

When pressed too hard he took refuge in technicalities and explanations that left his auditors panting and exhausted and no wiser than they were before.

Certainly the Thaw case is the paranoiad state of the expert witness. It will cost the State and the Thaw family a fortune, and the result will be absolutely nil.

Tweedledee Is Tweedledum and Tweedledum Is Tweedledee.

In the end, after having heard six learned gentlemen on one side swear that tweedledum is tweedledee and half a dozen other learned gentlemen on the other side argue that tweedledee is tweedledum, the jury will forget it all and take into consideration only what they have seen themselves, and a few plain facts they have gathered as to the why and wherefore of the cause.

Dr. Wagner, however, is interesting as an alienist and a man. On his direct examination he gave the impression of a man of singular directness, one whose "yea" was "yea," and whose "nay" was "nay," but on the cross-examination he developed an ability to tread a measure even with Dr. Evans in the graceful art of concealing his thoughts in words. No plain answer to a plain question could be wrung from him, and even his admissions were so qualified and amended and explained that they were valueless to the prosecution.

It was an interesting duel of wits between him and Jerome, each seeking to catch the other napping, or at worst to wear the other out. The one thing at which the Thaw alienists shy as a nervous horse at a piece of white paper in the roadway, is the dread word "paranoia," for to concede that at the time Thaw killed White he was suffering from that form of insanity, which is practically incurable, would be to open the way for the lunacy commission.

Time and again Mr. Jerome sought to drive the doctor to the admission that Thaw was afflicted with this form of dementia. Time and again he led the physician by devious routes, craftily, gently, insidiously up to the very point of admitting it. Time and again he sought to surprise admission out of the expert, but always in vain. Before the actual branding of the brain storm as "paranoia," he balked finally and unmovably and would not move a peg.

Concerning Thaw's ellipeptic tendency and epileptic inheritances, Dr. Wagner refused to commit himself. That will be a part of the sorrowful story Mrs. Thaw will tell. When she takes the stand and bares the secrets of her family that have been hidden so long and so jealously from the spying eyes of an anxious world, ghoulishly anxious to see the canker that lies upon the heart of the rich and powerful, it will be such an ordeal as few mothers, rich or poor, have ever had to endure. But the proud old grande dame will joyfully make this sacrifice, as she has every other for the sake of her favorite son, and every woman in the land will breathe a prayer that her supreme offering on the altar of maternal love will not be made in vain.

Currents of Two Great Tragedies Cross Each Other.

So obsessed has every one connected with this absorbing human drama become in it that other events pass almost without notice, but for a moment yesterday there was a dramatic pause, while the dark currents of two great tragedies crossed each other.

This was when Mrs. Wallau, the woman accused of having murdered her mother because she could not bear to see that mother's agony, was brought into an anteroom, and Justice Fitzgerald suspended the Thaw trial while he signed the papers admitting her to bail.

No two crimes could be more unlike, or inspired by more different motives. And yet for a moment the rich young man, and the rich woman, the one being tried for his life, and the one to be tried for her life, were one in a common grief and anxiety and fear.

OIL OCTOPUS BUNCOED U. S. IN PHILIPPINES

Charges Filed That Standard Evaded $20,000 Duty on Shipments.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Charges have been filed at the Treasury Department to the effect that the Standard Oil has been buncoing Uncle Sam in the Philippines.

The amount involved is said to be $20,000. The agents of John D., however, plead their innocence and appear anxious to try the matter out in the Philippine courts.

The Standard is accused of evading duty on 20,000 cases of oil shipped from the United States to the Philippines during 1901 when a high tariff was in force against oil from this country to the isles.

Sold 35,000 Cases.

It appears that in June, 1901, W. B. Walker, the Manila agent of the Standard, entered into a contract with the quartermaster's department of the army for the delivery of 350,000 gallons of Comet oil to the quartermaster's depot at Manila. This oil comes in five-gallon cans, two cans to the case. So 35,000 cases were necessary to fill the order.

Deliveries commenced about July 1, 1901. The full amount was cleared through the Manila Custom House to November 15. On this date a tariff reduction on oil was made from $1.01 per case to 40½ cents. Of the amount imported between July and November, 30,000 cases were withdrawn for delivery to the Depot Quartermaster, and on them no duty was paid.

Over Half Sold Trade.

It has been discovered that the books of the Depot Quartermaster show that during this period only 10,679 cases were delivered to the army. The remaining 19,321 cases were sold to the trade. Later, when the tariff had been reduced, duty was paid on 19,821 cases at the reduced rate of 40½ cents per case and these delivered to the army. By the manipulation it is charged the Standard was ahead in the game just 60½ cents per case.

Collector of Customs Henry B. McCoy discovered the discrepancy, and has made demand of the agents of the Standard in the Philippines for the payment of the full tariff on the cases, that is, $1.01 per case. Should the Standard be compelled to pay this amount, it would lose the 40½ cents per case paid on 10,321 cases after November 15, 1901.

LICENSE GETS HARD BLOW IN VT. ELECTIONS

VERMONT CITY ELECTIONS.

City and Mayor.	Licence.
Barre, John Robin (R)	Yes
Burlington, Walter J. Bigelow (R)	No
Montpelier, Jas. S. Haley (Non-P)	No
Rutland, R. L. Richmond (R)	Yes
St. Albans, Norman N. Atwood (R)	No
Vergennes, Jas. N. Ryan (Non-P.)	No

RUTLAND, Vt., March 6.—Surprising changes in the license sentiment in Vermont are shown by the complete returns received early to-day from the vote of yesterday. There are but two cities and seventeen towns in the license column this year as compared with twenty-seven towns and the same number of cities last year. In 1905 thirty-six cities and towns voted for license; in 1904, forty-nine, and in 1903 ninety-two.

Burlington, the largest city in the State, is this year in the no-license column for the first time since license became operative in Vermont. Barre changed from no license to license.

In all of the six cities municipal elections were held. The only contest that attracted State attention was that in Burlington, where Walter J. Bigelow, a newspaper editor, Republican, defeated James E. Burke, known as the Blacksmith Mayor. Mr. Bigelow charged carelessness and mismanagement in the city affairs, while Mayor Burke charged that the corporations were back of Bigelow. The latter won by a majority of ninety-five.

The Republicans were also successful in the contests in Barre, Rutland and St. Albans. In Montpelier, Mayor James S. Haley was unopposed, nor was there any candidate in Vergennes against against James W. Ryan, who ran on a non-partisan ticket.

LARCHMONT TRAGEDY HITS INSPECTORS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—A shake-up in the Federal steamboat inspection service is being planned by the Department of Commerce and Labor, as a direct result of the Larchmont disaster. Four assistant inspectors in Boston—Haines, Thompson, Gillman and Perry—are expected to be transferred to other ports. The entire inspection service is to be reorganized for the purpose of weeding out incompetent officials and to improve the districts and the work coming under each head. Supervising Inspector-General George Uhler expects to announce the transfers in a few days.

The report of the special board of steamboat inspection of the New London, Ct., district, which is investigating Larchmont tragedy, is to be filed with the government next week. Captain McVay of the ill-fated steamer is to be examined, probably, by the inspectors to-day.

It is said that the Department of Commerce and Labor believes the Larchmont was to blame for the collision, for it has not been explained, it is alleged, why the steamer was across the bow of the schooner Harry Knowlton.

FIND A DYING WOMAN LYING IN BLOOD POOL

With the left side of her head crushed in by a terrific blow received in falling down the icy outside stairs in the rear of her home, Mrs. Caroline Miller, sixty-five years old, of No. 53 West Third street, South Boston, lies dying at the City Hospital. She was found lying in a pool of blood at the foot of the stairs this morning by her aged husband, Frederick Miller, some time after she had gone down from their flat on the second floor to the yard. Dr. Edward Denning of No. 216 West Broadway said there was no hope of Mrs. Miller's recovery.

UNDIVORCED COUPLE WED SECOND TIME

Believing that she was legally divorced twenty-five years ago, Mrs. Mary W. Munroe remarried only to find shortly afterward that the divorce was no good on the ground that the decree had never been absolute. The husband also married a second time, and in order to straighten out this unusual matrimonial tangle, Judge Braley of the Supreme Court has just issued a decree making the twenty-six-year-old separation strictly according to law. Carlos G. Munroe and Mary S. Willets were married April 15, 1876. They lived happily for some years; then dissensions arose and in the Spring of 1882 the wife received a divorce.

TRUST WILL FIGHT MACHINE BILL IN COURTS

President of United Shoe Machinery Co. Makes Threat at State House Hearing.

LABOR FIGHTS FOR BILL

President Sidney W. Winslow of the United Shoe Machinery Company, at the hearing before the Joint Committee on Judiciary last night, regarding that company's methods of conducting business, strongly intimated that if the committee saw fit to report favorably on the bill, that its constitutionality would be threshed out before the Supreme Court of Massachusetts. Four times during the two hours that he was on the witness stand President Winslow called the attention of the committee to the fact that the constitutionality of the bill was a matter of doubt and that the Supreme Court and not the Committee on Judiciary would settle that question.

Another point brought out in the testimony of President Winslow was the fact that the United Shoe Machinery Company could, in accordance with their lease and did on certain occasions, remove all of their machinery from a plant where some of their machines had been substituted for other makes.

Admitted Using Force.

President Winslow appeared most unwilling to admit this fact and it was only after the most persistent questioning by Senator Reilley that the head of the shoe machinery trust would admit that his company forced its customers to use their machinery exclusively by the threat of removing all of it if other machinery was introduced in the factories.

When asked point blank why he objected to the passing of the bill regarding the methods of his company's business, President Winslow stated that his opposition was grounded on the fact that such legislation would prove harmful to his customers and would bring about a state of affairs that would be injurious to all concerned in the manufacture of shoes. He emphatically denied that the bill would prevent the United Shoe Machinery Company from doing business and flatly stated that if the bill was passed and its constitutionality established, the company would find other methods of carrying on its business that would prove equally profitable.

Labor Fights Trust.

Attorney Herbert Parker, counsel for the independent dealers, read two letters, one from the Central Labor Union of Boston and the other an extract from the resolutions drawn up by the executive board of New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, which stated that the methods of conducting business by the United Shoe Machinery Company were detrimental to the best interests of labor, and that they were ready to send a delegation to the committee stating their side of the case.

The letter from the Boston Central Labor Union stated that that organization sustained the machine union in the stand "taken against the tyrannical acts of the United Shoe Machinery Company."

Plucky Providence Stenographer Tells

"HOW I CAUGHT ROBBERS"

With Wonderful Presence of Mind Alma R. Loeffler Blocks Thieves' Way.

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, March 6.—How Miss A. R. Loeffler, stenographer in the brokerage offices of Daniel A. Pierce & Company, on the fifth floor of the Union Trust building, held up two bold daylight robbers who by a ruse had secured $240 from the safe, made them disgorge, and then handed the men over to the police of that city, she to-day tells for BOSTON AMERICAN readers.

The two men, Alabar Lederer, aged nineteen, and Bela Muller, aged twenty-one, both claiming to be Hungarians, were arrested yesterday after they had robbed a stenographer in the office of S. A. Wood, in Custom House street, and attempted to secure money from several other offices.

By Miss A. R. Loeffler

I have read of many bold robberies, but none more bold than that attempted in the office of Daniel A. Pierce & Company, where I am employed as stenographer. Mr. Pierce was absent yesterday, and I had charge of the office.

It was nearly noon when two men walked quietly into the room through the open door. Both were well dressed and had the manner of gentlemen. Indeed at the time there was nothing at all suspicious.

They both approached the desk at which I was at work, one slightly in advance of the other. The one in advance came up to me with a pleasant smile and began to question me about some stocks and bonds.

His English was quite broken, and time and again I had to ask him to repeat what he was saying. It seemed to be of no use, for I could not understand. I was puzzled and shook my head, saying again and again:

"I'm sure I don't understand you."

Drew Attention from Safe.

All of this time he was edging around so that the safe in another part of the room and not far from the open door by which they had entered was hidden from my view. At the time I thought nothing of it for I was trying to understand the young man.

Finally the man pulled out a little notebook and began to try to write his questions. I was bending over the book at what he was writing when some slight noise behind me caused me to suddenly lift my head. I was startled to see the other man slipping softly and rapidly towad the open door with the cash box of the safe in his hands.

In an instant I saw through the whole ruse. I had been tricked! By some good fortune I was not so scared as to be deserted by my wits. I leaped to my feet and started toward the door to intercept the thief.

The man I had been talking to started after. I feared violence, but didn't have time to think until I had got to the door at the same time the man with the cash box got there. I knew that the box contained about $240 of my employers' money and some valuable negotiable papers. That was all I was thinking about then.

Demands Money Back.

"Give me that money box," I demanded.

"Give me that box," I said again, as I sa wthe men hesitate.

The moment I spoke something seemed tell me that they were losing their nerve. I stood right in the doorway so that they would have to push me aside to get out.

"I hope you woman cause no trouble," said the man with the money box.

"Put it back where you get it then," I said.

He started and astonished me by meekly going over to the safe and putting the box back in its place.

MISS ALMA R LOEFFLER, WHO CAPTURED TWO PROVIDENCE ROBBERS

Out in the corridor and straight toward the elevator the men slipped so quickly that I was afraid that they had really taken the money and put back the empty box. There was no time to run to the safe to investigate—the only thing to do was to capture the men. They were thieves anyway, and I should not allow them to escape.

Of course this thinking was in a flash, a hundred times quicker than it takes to tell it, and:

"Thieves! Robbers! Burglars!" I cried, and I fear I also called "Fire! Fire! Fire!" for I was beginning to go to pieces by this time.

Former Fire Commissioner Benjamin F. Harrington and his two clerks, Charles Bryer and Arthur P. Mowry, at work in an adjoining office, heard my shrieks, and they came out pell-mell.

"They're safe thieves!" I gasped, pointing out the now-shrinking men to my rescuers.

Into his office dived Mr. Harrington, to emerge a moment after with a big revolver, with which he covered the would-be robbers. With the gun he backed them into a corner, there being no need to cry:

"Hands up!" The men did this of their own accord.

The police were soon sent for and the men taken to the station.

Then I almost collapsed. But the money was saved and the robbers arrested.

Without a Peer.

Words of grateful acknowledgment for benefits received always indicate a noble character. How pleasant it is to listen to the praise uttered by Charles Hardy, of Frankfort, Ind., who says that he suffered with indigestion and palpitation of the heart, of which he was entirely cured by taking Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound. He claims that this wonderful medicine has done more for him than all other remedies with which he is acquainted. In 1905 13,500,000 persons afflicted with catarrh, rheumatism, neuralgia, erysipelas, blood troubles, female complaints, dyspepsia and scrofula felt equally grateful, when taking Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound, for the afforded relief for their distressing ailments. "HEAD SPIRIT" TO LAY BARE SPOOK HOUSE

SAYS SHE GOT $12 WEEKLY

NEW YORK, March 6.—Operators of fraudulent spiritualistic manifestations in this city, particularly in the spiritualist stronghold bounded by Sixth and Seventh avenues, between Thirteenth and Twenty-third streets, are in a state of panic, and many are preparing to flee the city, as the result of a bomb thrown into their camp by Mrs. Harriet E. Strickland, a real live spirit, now living at No. 526 East Twenty-fourth street, Flatbush.

Mrs. Strickland has retained Andrew Macrery, a lawyer, of No. 31 Nassau street, to institute proceedings against "Rev. Dr." Hugh R. Moore, a medium, now operating at No. 120 West Thirteenth street, and pastor of the First Church of Progressive Spiritualists, upon whom personal service in the suit was made Monday afternoon. Mrs. Strickland charges "Dr." Moore with defamation of character and names a score of persons to whom he is alleged to have defamed her, in order, she says, to protect his spook business from exposure. She asks $25,000 damages from "Dr." Moore.

In proving the case Mrs. Strickland says she will bring about so conclusive an expose of the phenomena of "materialization" as to leave no doubt in the minds of even lifetime believers of the fraud which has been practiced upon them. Mrs. Strickland says that she served as a spirit in Moore's materializations for one year at a salary of $12 a week, and gives the names of eight other persons who were employed as spirits. She also goes into details of the inside workings of the spook fraternity.

STEVENS MAKING DIRT FLY ON CANAL

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Chief Engineer Stevens is trying to make a record before he turns the Panama Canal work over to his successor, Lieutenant-Colonel Goethals, as is evidenced by a cablegram received from him reporting more gravel flying than ever before.

TRY TO PLACE BLAME FOR TUNNEL CRASH

ELEVATED OFFICIALS INVESTIGATING CAUSE OF CAR COLLISION.

Officials of the Boston Elevated Railway to-day began a rigid investigation of the collision that occured early last evening between a Chelsea electric and a Lexington avenue car at the Atlantic avenue station of the East Boston tunnel. The company wants to find out whether or not Motorman Matthew Charles Corsick, of the Chelsea car, which crashed into the stationary Lexington avenue car, could have brought his car to a stop if he had been more alert, or whether the crash was due to the fault of the car's mechanism.

Passengers on the Chelsea car were loud to-day in their praise of the motorman, who was badly injured. By sticking to his post as he did, the passengers declare he showed heroism in abundance. Though pinned down by the wreckage of the vestibule where he stood, he pluckily assisted the passengers, among whom was former Governor John L. Bates, in lifting the broken and twisted beams and wodwork from his body and legs.

Sixteen persons, including former Governor Bates, were injured in the accident.

Miss Etta McKay, of No. 31 Monmouth street, East Boston, who was a passenger on the Chelsea car, in speaking to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter about the accident, said:

"Wholly unconscious of impending danger, I was talking with Miss Bernice Parnell when the crash came. The lights went out instantly, and everybody was shot headlong from their seats. I went on to the floor of the car, under the feet of the passengers who were standing, and it seemed as if an army was walking over me. I am bruised all over now. Former Governor Bates grabbed me and lifted me to my feet. I fainted, and the next I knew I found myself outside the car. It was terrible. Inside the car there was panic, and on the station platform the people were equally as wild."

PUBLIC BIASED, SAYS HARRIMAN

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Edward H. Harriman, when asked if he believed the administration would try next Congress to strengthen the rate law, said: "I should judge from the hearing at New York, rather the inquisition, that it is the purpose to impose further restrictions of some kind or other upon the railroads.

"I think that instead of creating agitation and bad feeling the Interstate Commerce Commission should try to bring it abouт that the people who know about transportation lines should co-operate with them first before appealing to a prejudiced public sentiment. They should begin right if they are earnest and sincere."

When it was suggested that President Roosevelt may benefit by talking over railroad matters with him, Mr. Harriman said: "You get the President to appoint me his special adviser and I will sit by him night and day and advise him what to do."

Her case was continued, but on the next offence she will be sent to the State Industrial School.

Their offices are equipped with the latest appliances for treating chronic disease.

Their cured patients are their best advertisements, and these testimonials are published in the daily press to make known to the sick everywhere that although the family physician, the so-called specialist and the patent drug store remedy have failed to cure there is still the ripe skill of the Osmo-Chemic physicians and the marvelous Osmo-Chemic equipment to call to their aid before all hope is lost.

ALDRICH GIVES UP FIGHT IN R. I. DEADLOCK

PROVIDENCE, March 6.—The Senatorial deadlock which has been existing here for the past two months is beyond the power of United States Senator Aldrich to settle. The Senator, it is admitted, has found great complications in the Senatorial situation, and has abandoned all attempts to bring about a solution. There are grave fears expressed that the next Fall election may result in a Republican rout in consequence.

COMMITTEE SPLITS OVER MAINE CAPITAL

AUGUSTA, Me., March 6.—A divided report was rendered yesterday by the joint committee on public buildings and grounds as to the advisability of moving the State capital and the matter will be threshed out on the floor of the Senate on Wednesday of next week.

KIDNEYS FIRST WEAR OUT AND MANY SUFFER

GOOD HOME PRESCRIPTION.

The great majority of men and women at the age of 50 years begin to feel the first signs of advancing age in some form of kidney trouble and bladder weakness. Few are entirely free from that torturous disease, rheumatism, which is not a disease in itself, but a symptom of deranged function of the kidneys which have become clogged and sluggish failing in their duty of sifting and straining the poisonous waste matter, uric acid, etc., from the blood, permitting it to remain and decompose, settling about the joints and muscles, causing intense pain and suffering.

The bladder, however, causes the old folks the most annoyance, especially at night and early morning.

A noted authority in a recent article stated that he has wonderful success with the old-time "vegetable treatment." He states: "Of sixteen cases of bladder troubles and rheumatism which have been treated with this treatment only one very complicated case failed to fully yield to its remarkable influence. It is the most harmless treatment I have ever found to clean the system of rheumatic poisons; remove irritation of the bladder and relieve urinary difficulties of the old people. It is a true vitalizing tonic to the entire kidney and urinary structure, reinvigorating the entire system."

What he terms "old vegetable treatment" consists of the following simple prescription, the ingredients in which can be obtained from any good pharmacy at small cost: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and upon going to bed, also drink plenty of water. This prescription, though simple, is always effective in the diseases and afflictions of the kidney and bladder.

SAYS FREE PASS BILL WILL BAR R. R. TAXATION

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., March 6.—That the State of New Hampshire will relinquish a valuable right if it allows the passage of the famous Lord free pass bill, providing that railroads shall carry over their lines the State officials in return for their "valuable franchise," has become more evident than ever, it is now urged, by a decision of the Attorney-General rendered yesterday, in reply to a question by the House, "that under the amended constitution of the State the franchise of railroad and all other corporations may be taxed, subject to the constitutional limitations respecting double taxation."

No franchise tax has ever been assessed in the State, but it is now hoped to pass a bill providing for it. The railroad franchises alone are worth millions of dollars and if taxed at the average rate of taxation in the State would enrich the State treasury by many thousands.

It is believed that if the Lord bill passes it will, at least so long as it remains on the statute books, render invalid any tax assessed upon this class of property.

'TEMPERANCE TOWN' LICENSE

HANOVER, N. H., March 6.—The town of Norwich, Vt., situated about one mile from Hanover, yesterday voted license, seventy to fifty-five. For fifteen years the town has been no-license, but the record was broken by the foreign element's vote. Since the Vermont license commission has the granting of licenses to sell liquor in Vermont, it is said that the organization of the license vote has been strengthened. Norwich is the town in which lived a man named Kidling whose many liquor cases in court suggested Hoyt's famous play, "A Temperance Town."

IS ONLY GIRL UNDERTAKER

Special to the Boston American.

BANGOR, March 6.—Miss Grace Thayer of South Paris, enjoys the unique distinction of being the only woman undertaker in Maine.

"I have been in this business seven years," said Miss Thayer, "and like it very much. When my father died I carried on the business, and have never regretted the course I took. I have never been at all nervous about the nature of my work, and the only time that it is at all hard is when I am called to some of my friends."

NOT A CANDIDATE FOR JUDGESHIP

Through an error it was stated in the afternoon editions of the papers yesterday that Ex-Senator Thomas H. Dowd of the Tremont building was to be a candidate for the position of associate justice of the Roxbury Municipal Court. Mr. Dowd wishes to emphatically deny the statement and disclaims all responsibility for the rumor, as he has no intention at present of becoming a candidate for the office.

JOHNSON, VT., ADOPTS MUNICIPAL LIGHTING

JOHNSON, Vt., March 6.—At a village meeting last night the trustees were empowered to make contracts for a municipal electric light and power plant.

TOWN SHORT OF WATER.

WATERVILLE, Vt., March 6.—A great shortage of water exists in this village owing to frozen pipes. Water for drinking and household purposes, as well as for cattle has to be carried from small streams.

GIRL CARRIES MAIL IN STORM

Special to the Boston American.

BANGOR, March 6.—Miss Etta Nelson, driver of Route No. 3, R. F. D., from the Pittsfield, Me., office, carries the mail daily over her route, a distance of nearly twenty miles, rain or shine, having a record equalled by few carriers in Maine.

During the big snow storm of January 23 the fair carrier was the only one from the Pittsfield office who completed the trip. Her health was poor at the time she applied for a position as carrier and it was for this reason that she entered the service.

The daily drives in the open air have restored her to health and she now is rugged and can stand the Winter blasts as well as a man.

GOES TO NAVAL ACADEMY.

RUTLAND, Vt., March 6.—Glen W. Eastman of this city has been appointed midshipman at the Naval Academy by Senator Proctor. R. B. Cochran of Putney and L. H. Stafford of this city are named as alternates.

Food Poisons.

90 Per Cent of All Diseases the Result of Undigested Putrefying Foods.

Men of affairs, women of society and children with active brains are too often sedentary in their habits giving little time to exercise. To this evil is added that of high and irregular living—as a result, the stomach cannot stand the demands made upon it. The abused and overtaxed stomach does not properly do the work of digestion, food taken in ferments and the poison permeates the whole system. The body loses in weight and becomes a prey for the attack of whatever disease it may encounter.

Did it ever occur to you how busy that stomach of yours is? It only holds three pints, but in one year you force it to take in 2,400 pounds of material, digest it and prepare it for assimilation into the blood. No wonder it rebels when overworked. We crowd it with steaks and pastry, irritate its juices with spices and acids, and expect the stomach to do its work. It can't do it.

All over the inner layer of the stomach are glands which secrete the juices necessary to digestion. The entrance of food into the stomach is the signal for these glands to do their work. The more the food, and the more indigestible, the greater the demand upon them and upon the muscles of the wall adjoining.

Think of the tons of high seasoned game, sweetmeats and appetizers crammed into this little four-ounce mill, and then wonder, if you will, why you are dizzy or nauseated or constipated. Don't blame your stomach or curse your fate that you should be born so unfortunate. Blame yourself and apply the remedy.

First, get a small package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, taking one after each meal and at bed time. They are not a medicine, but a digestive. Your stomach is worn out and needs help, not medicine. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do the work that the stomach fails to do. There's enough power in one grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to digest 3,000 grains of ordinary food, so you needn't fear that anything you eat will remain in your stomach undigested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will rout the poison because they remove the cause—food fermentation. They are nature's own cure for dyspepsia. The host of troubles dyspepsia is father of cannot be numbered, for a healthy stomach is the source of all health.

Seize your opportunity before worse conditions confront you. Send today for a free trial package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They will bring your stomach relief. F. A. Stuart Co., 83 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

TWO CHARMING HELPS IN SOLVING THE PROBLEM OF THE EASTER HAT

Here Are the Newest Shapes Showing Two Styles That Bid Fair to Lead in Popularity This Spring

ALTHOUGH there are almost as many styles in hats as there are days in the coming season, permitting everyone to wear her own particular styles and yet feel serenely confident that she is up to date, the two models shown here will be leaders.

They have already sprung into popularity that promises to make them leaders of the models for Spring wear.

The centre photograph shows a beautiful white chip with mode edge trimmed with brown and mode shade wings and brown velvet, velvet ribbons and roses of same shade.

The other is a very chic mushroom shaped hat of watermelon shade, made of fancy braid.

This hat is trimmed with grapes of watermelon shade.

The black has abundant trimmings of grapes, with ribbons of the same shade.

A Boston dealer predicts that these two styles, taken as types, and of course, modified to meet individual ideas, will prove easily in the forefront of the Easter parade.

MODIFICATIONS of these two shapes, especially of the mushroom model, will be the prevailing styles throughout the Spring, according to the experts of Paris.

Beatrice Fairfax Tells How to Get Rid of That Tired Feeling

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Take This Simple "Rest Cure" at Home and Follow the Simple Life During the "Run Down" Season

THIS is the time of year when the girl who has worked all Winter in office, shop or factory is apt to become "run down."

The chances are that she has not had enough fresh air or sleep and too much going out to parties, etc.

If I were you, little Miss Gadabout, I would cry "halt!" and catch up a bit.

I would try the "simple life" in very earnest for a few weeks, and start in the Spring blooming and fresh as the Spring itself.

You can take a sort of "rest cure" in your own home without giving up your work. But you must give up all forms of gaiety for a few weeks. Also you must give up tea and coffee, and drink plenty of milk and water in their stead.

Do you think you could give up pastry and cakes for a while and eat fruit instead? Remember, that the prize at stake is a lovely, clear complexion.

You must try and walk at least a mile and a half every day, either at night or morning.

Take a warm bath the last thing before going to bed, open your windows wide, cover yourself well, and sleep like a top until morning. Have the lights out by 9:30.

Of course you would not like to do that all the year round, but remember that this is a rest cure you are taking.

Just try it for a month. Live as plainly, as quietly, as restfully as you can. The long Winter is hard on every one and the first of the Spring is wearing.

If you find yourself very much run down, the wisest thing to do is see a good doctor. But if you are merely tired you can be your own doctor.

The majority of people do not drink nearly enough water. Three pints a day is supposed to be the proper amount.

Drink as much milk as you can, avoid canned goods and eat fruit. Cereal, milk and an egg make enough breakfast for any one.

Remember, not a dance, nor a play, nor any kind of gaiety for a month; nothing but sensible food, sensible hours and lots of fresh air.

You will make yourself look five years younger, and be ever so much better looking.

Don't imagine that these words don't apply to you, for they do; to you and every girl and woman who earns her own living. You can't burn the candle at both ends all the time, and that is just what you do when you work all day and sit up till all hours every night.

WAY TO MAKE SACHET POWDER

THE basis of most good sachet powders is Cyprus powder, made from reindeer moss, which is carefully picked over and then reduced to powder. It is fragrant in itself and very retentive of odors, hence its name. To it are added any sweet scents desired in various proportions.

You can take any quantity of Cyprus powder and scent it with triple fragrant essences or with mixed essential oils, and if you wish you can first reduce these to powder by trituration with a little lump of sugar.

An agreeable mixture calls for thirty parts of Cyprus powder (you can use half the quantities and call it ounces), sixteen parts of orris root, six parts of coriander seed, two parts each of mace and violet ebony and one part of cassia, cloves, musk seed and sandalwood.

The substances must be coarsely powdered and mixed thoroughly. Age improves all perfumes.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

STILL they come! Heralded and unheralded, the bargains sweep into the shopper's line of vision and melt away as they are appropriated by eager buyers.

Thursday brings its quota, and some of the best presented on that day are described below:

HENRY SIEGEL COMPANY, in their carpet department, third floor, will offer an unheard-of bargain in linoleums, made of cork and pure linseed oil, in tile, hardwood floor and other artistic effects. They will offer the 65-cent quality to-morrow at the sensational price of 29 cents a yard. They have twenty-eight cases of this linoleum, twenty-five yards long and two yards wide, containing fifty to sixty square yards each. They will also sell a limited quantity of the four-yard wide in large remnants, containing from ten to fifteen yards, for 39 cents. These have never sold for less than 75 and 80 cents. These great specials are for to-morrow only.

A. SHUMAN CO., getting ready for still fresher stock, are clearing out a lot of children's French figured pique dresses, some woolens in the lot, marked down from $6 and $7 to $1.95. These are somewhat mussed and soiled from handling; in sizes 4 to 14.

They also have 6 girls' silk coats, sizes 6, 8 and 10, full length, marked from $10 and $12.50 to $1.95. Both dresses and coats are just the thing for the beach and country.

GILCHRIST COMPANY will sell for Thursday only one lot of boys' suits and overcoats in most all sizes from 3 to 16 years, heavy and medium weights, worth $4 and $5, at $2.50 for your choice.

MACDONNELL'S will sell at 12 o'clock, Thursday, 600 neck lengths of fine ruching in six different patterns at 5 cents a length, positively worth 10 cents, not over two lengths to a customer.

HOUGHTON & DUTTON CO. afford lovers of the Oriental a chance to own a genuine Bagdad couch cover, hand embroidered in the well-known mosque design, at $2.98 each—less than the price of a common cotton cover of domestic make. Oriental dealers ask as high as $8 for the same kind. On sale Thursday only. They have just received a special purchase of matting covered shirt waist boxes, which are offered at the low price of $2.69 each for to-morrow. They are a large, roomy box, made of clear whitewood, covered with fine Japan matting and trimmed with split bamboo on the outside edges. The regular price has been $3.98 for this size.

DODGE-SPEAR CO., in their book department on the balcony, offer a perfect treasure in a beautiful cloth-bound edition of Webster's school and office dictionary, containing over 70,000 words, complete lists of musical and law terms, foreign words and phrases, hints on etiquette, spelling and letter writing. Publisher's price, $1.00; sale price, 39 cents. Knowledge certainly is power and at that price it is put within the reach of everyone.

JAMES A. HOUSTON COMPANY offer for $10 their $18.50 broadcloth coats, fifty inches long, circular back, satin lined throughout, stole collar, braid trimmed and with cuffs turned back to match collar.

W. H. BRINE CO. will have on the fourth floor $1 white muslin petticoats for 69 cents. These skirts have a deep flounce of embroidery and tucks. On the street floor they will sell boys' 50-cent flanelette night robes for 39 cents, and housewives will find on the third floor $1.25 domestic wrappers selling for 98 cents. There is a pretty assortment made of medium colored percales, ruffled and in pointed yoke effects, and an extra full skirt finished with a flounce.

CONRAD & CO. are selling heather bloom and nearsilk taffeta petticoats made with very full ruffle, underpiece and dust ruffle for $1.35. These skirts have the "frou frou" of the real silk skirt, with the advantage that they are more durable, and do not break and crack as do the best of silks in time.

TIMOTHY SMITH CO. are offering boys' 25-cent knitted toques for 16 cents. These are in small shapes and all the popular colorings. They are well made, warm and stylish. They are also selling for $1.49 boys' $2 well-tailored, two-piece suits, sizes for boys from 8 to 16 only. These suits are made from blue and black cheviots. They are also offering boys' $3 Russian overcoats for $1.49, sizes 3 to 8 years, and long overcoats, sizes 15-16 only.

Wise Wives Are Glad to Entertain Their Husbands' Business Friends

A MAN who has business friends must entertain them somehow. If he can entertain them pleasantly at home, so much the better for him and for you and for everybody concerned. One never knows when a business friend's help may "come in useful." Many a wife has helped to make or mar her husband's business career.

Even though she knows nothing of his affairs, and he is disinclined to take her into his confidence regarding them, she may do much to mould his business future without stepping outside her own home sphere.

A wife can often make her social gifts contribute largely to the much-desired end, and in this way can often give her husband assistance which is simply invaluable to him. Especially should she be prepared to entertain his business friends.

Whether he be an employer or whether he be a clerk, there are few things more important to a man than to cultivate a wide circle of business acquaintances, for in the one case it means increase of business, and in the other much greater certainty of employment.

How many men there are who when they reach middle age lose their situations and do not know where to look to find another berth!

They know nobody who has any influence in business houses, and all they can do is to turn to the heartbreaking task of answering advertisements, and, as their merits are unknown to the advertisers, younger men are generally preferred.

The Man with No Friends

If there comes a time when expenses have to be cut down, and somebody has to go, it is, other things being equal, generally the man who has not troubled to make himself personally popular and is regarded by the others as an outsider who is the selected victim.

Do not, therefore, discourage your husband from bringing home his business friends, even though you do not find much pleasure in their society. They may not interest you at all; they may not be quite the class of people with whom you have been accustomed to mix; for it by no means follows that the man who can bestow on your husband a remunerative agency is much of a social acquisition.

Who Is to Blame?

It would be a thousand pities to let any such consideration stand in the way of what is really an important matter.

The wife, however, is often not the only—or even the chief—one to blame when this duty is shelved. Very likely her husband has never thoroughly explained to her that he invites his city friends not from choice, but for serious business reasons.

Unless he does that he must not be surprised if his wife is reluctant to entertain people who are not congenial to her. It is very often, however, just because he is a good fellow and unwilling to urge on his wife anything that seems distasteful to her that he fails to speak out and yields his point if he finds the slightest opposition on her part.

A wife who is worthy of confidence, but whose husband does not place confidence in her, or give her credit for taking a common sense view of business questions when they are fairly put before her, is very much handicapped, however anxious she may be to second his endeavors.

It may be this question of entertaining friends, it may be one of expenses; there are some husbands who never will speak out.

A woman yoked to a man of this sort need not, however, despair.

There is one avenue open to her at least, by which she is very often able to contribute largely toward success.

Better than anyone, she knows his weak points, and by encouragement and a strong guiding in the right direction she can make of the man who loves her what she will.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT A GOOD FRIEND

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young woman aged twenty-two years and considered rather pretty. I have been married two years. My husband is very kind and devoted to me, but since my marriage I have met a young man who is very dear to me, and he returns my affection. I honor and respect my husband, but I could never love him as I love this young man, who is also a gentleman in every respect. He continually urges me to leave my husband and go away with him, but for my baby's sake I would never consent to this, and, as I could not live without ever seeing him, and, as my husband stays out late attending to some business matters once or twice a week, would it be proper to allow this young man to call on the evenings that my husband is out?

DISCONTENTED.

THE man is not a good friend to you, but a very dangerous enemy. He is doing you a great wrong in urging you to leave your husband, and you should not listen to him. Think of your baby, and remember your duty to your husband. Put this dangerous element out of your life—don't let this man come to the house at all. Believe me, you can't be too wise and prompt about this.

A LONG WAIT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and one-half years old and in love with a young man nearly twenty-two, who says he loves me dearly. He says he will ask me to marry him in two years' time, but is not willing to wait any longer. I told him I would not think of marrying for at least five years, as I think twenty-three would be plenty young enough for me to leave home and begin the responsibilities of married life. He says if he thought I really did not want to marry for five years that he would stop calling on me at once, and that if I loved him I would be glad to marry him sooner. He wants an answer now. Do you not think if he really loved me as much as he says that he would be willing to wait? What shall I tell him? We have been going together about five months.

H. M.

I DO not think you can expect the man to wait for five years—that would be a very long engagement. If you care for him I do not see why you are not willing to marry him in two years' time.

Just a word about the other kinds—that scratch the enamel and injure the gums and do not clean teeth.

The kinds that are only made to sell, and for nothing else.

There are about two thousand different kinds of tooth powders, pastes and whatnots on the market, but only one the old, reliable tooth preparation—made, sold and used all over the world for sixty years.

Sozodont is made in three forms: liquid, powder and paste. Sozodont is sold everywhere.

"The Bracebridge Diamonds, Or, The Heart of a Woman"

A Thrilling Romance of Love and Hate, Adventure and Intrigue

CHAPTER L.

Where Was Basil?

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner.

SYLVIA THURSTON had dropped in a dead faint upon the floor, and there Monica Peard found her when she reached the head of the stairs.

"Help me to carry her back to her own room, Martha," Monica said, as she stooped to lift the unconscious girl in her arms.

Mrs. Thurston had now come upstairs in great agitation, and Carl Mueller stood behind her, gazing speechlessly upon Sylvia's ghastly face and limp, death-like form.

"Do not be alarmed, Mrs. Thurston," Monica said hurriedly, as she moved slowly down the lobby with her burden. "She will be better presently. Please go back to the drawing room. I will come at once and tell you when Sylvia has recovered."

She glanced significantly at Mueller as she spoke, and he offered his arm to Mrs. Thurston and led her back to the room they had just left.

"Lay her flat on the floor, Miss Peard," Martha Jenner said as they entered Sylvia's room. "That's right. Now loosen her dress and I'll fetch some brandy."

It was a prolonged swoon, but at last a struggled sigh escaped the unconscious girl's pale lips, and the deathly look of her face began to alter a little as a faint color replaced the chalky pallor of her cheeks.

Monica sat beside Sylvia on the floor, supporting her friend's head and shoulders with her arm.

"Leave us together now, please, Martha," Monica whispered presently. "But you can remain in the hall, and if I want you I will call at once."

Martha Jenner accordingly withdrew, and after a minute or two she heard Sylvia's faint voice, then Monica Peard's soothing tones, then the sound of sobbing and some broken words from Sylvia:

"Oh, Monica, I cannot live without him! Oh, I wish—I wish God would take me this moment!"

Despair

"Poor thing! Poor Miss Sylvia!" Martha Jenner said to herself, the tears coursing down her cheeks. "She will never be the same again, I am afeared. She was wrapped up heart and soul in her brother. She will never have a sweetheart as she loved him. God help her!"

For the remainder of that day Monica Peard never left Sylvia's side. She encouraged the broken-hearted girl to speak of Raymond, and she herself dwelt on the past happy days which she had spent here at Moorcombe with Raymond and Sylvia, and revived little incidents of years before and even fragments of Raymond's light-hearted, careless, happy talk.

And as Sylvia listened her tears flowed freely at last, and she was enabled to stand face to face with this great sorrow of her life, and to realize what it meant to her—now and through the dreary, lonely future still to come.

"I wish God would take me, Monica!" said she again and again. "It frightens me to think of what my life will be without Raymond. I am calm enough now—as you see—but I have not courage enough to face the future. He was everything to me. Monica—he had a part in every thought of mine, every project, every memory, every anticipation. He was with me all day long—either in spirit or in reality. All my life was interwoven with his—and how can I attempt to wrench them asunder now?"

Nonplussed!

And what could Monica say in reply to such words as these? How could the conventional expressions of sympathy and consolation meet this particular case? So she was silent for the most part; and as that dreary evening closed Sylvia, utterly worn out and exhausted, dropped at last into a deep, unbroken slumber. Monica remained that night at Moorcombe, and slept on a cot in Sylvia's room.

"Should she wake during the night, I want to be near her," Monica said to Mrs. Thurston. "Martha Jenner is kindness itself, but she does not understand Sylvia as I do."

And all night long Monica lay wide awake, listening to her friend's regular breathing, and not until the first sun rays of the October morning were stealing through the drawn window curtains did she drop into a brief sleep.

She was aroused about an hour later by the entrance of Martha Jenner, and Sylvia presently awoke with a long sigh.

"That sleep will be the saving of her," Martha whispered to Monica. "But it would be better for her to be kept as quiet as possible to-day, Miss Peard. I think no one should see her but yourself—not even her father and mother."

"I will see to that, if at all possible, Martha."

"Joe Peters was saying just now that the police inspector would be likely to come today to put some questions to Miss Sylvia. He heard it in the village this morning."

"Miss Sylvia cannot possibly see the man, Martha. Such a conversation would be of serious injury to her at present. Absolute quiet is what she wants—and what she will have, if I can manage it," Monica said, with great determination in her plain, kindly face.

And all through that day Monica Peard was stanch to her determination, and even Mrs. Thurston was made to understand that her visits to her daughter's room should be of the briefest duration, and that no distressing subject should be mentioned.

It was somewhat of a shock and disappointment to Monica, therefore, when about 4 o'clock in the afternoon the old carriage from Redbrow drove up o Moorcombe, and a moment later Martha Jenner met Monica in the hall and said hurriedly:

"Miss Sylvia was peeping through the window just now, and she saw Miss Letitia Thurston stepping out of the carriage, and she says she must see her at once, as she has something very particular to say to her, Miss Peard."

Monica went to Sylvia's room and endeavored to dissuade her from this purpose, but her entreaty was futile. There was a flush of excitement in Sylvia's face. She had thrown on her dressing gown, and was pacing nervously up and down her room as she spoke to Monica.

"I would have gone myself to Redbrow could I have managed it to-day, Monica. I must see Cousin Letty—and I must see her alone, too. Tell her to come up to me, Monica, too. Tell her to come quickly. I cannot bear this suspense!"

With these strange words ringing in her ears Monica Peard was forced to depart on her unwilling errand.

"Such a meeting will undo all that I've done. I fear for Sylvia," Monica thought. "But there is no help for it now."

Sylvia waited her old kinswoman's appearance in a state of growing agitation; and when, after some ten minutes or so, the tall, still stately figure of Miss Letitia Thurston entered the room, Sylvia did not wait for a greeting of any kind from her visitor, but plunged at once into the matter that harassed her heart and brain.

"Hush, Cousin Letty! Say nothing to me of Raymond! I understand fully that you feel for me, and that true kindness has brought you here now. But I cannot talk of my sorrow to you. The words would choke me."

She paused for a second and drew a quick, gasping breath. She leaned closer to her old kinswoman, and her shaking fingers seized Miss Letitia's thin, shriveled hand.

"Cousin Letty, look me straight in the face, and answer me a question—as you hope for mercy! Where was Basil on the night of my brother's death?"

Miss Letitia recoiled a little, with a startled exclamation. For a moment or two she stared at Sylvia, as if she thought the girl's grief had affected her reason.

"Oh, Sylvia, Sylvia! you cannot possibly mean that!" she said at last. "Surely, surely, my dear, you do not connect Basil in any way with poor Raymond's terrible fate?"

Guesswork Never Brings Success!

Are you one of the persons who simply guess at things: or one of the kind who know? There is no middle ground: you are either the one or the other!

The man who guesses never gets anywhere. He may attain a fair place for a while, but sooner or later a crucial question is asked—then he must drop back and make way for the man who knows.

There is really no excuse nowadays for guessing at things when there is a library, summing up all knowledge, within reach of everybody, such as

The Encyclopaedia Britannica

This greatest reference library in the English language has been made by men who know, for the use of men who want to know. It marks an end of mere guesswork for all time. It is the slow product of over one hundred years, and represents the cost of a million dollars! The greatest authorities in every branch of history and science have contributed signed articles to its pages.

To-day the New Twentieth Century Edition, revised up to the present year, shows the high-water mark of human knowledge and experience. It is complete in 31 splendid volumes, containing 25,000 large double-column pages embellished profusely with diagrams, maps, and illustrations. Every topic is treated in full, and a supplementary index volume supplies cross-references as well as systematic courses of reading in any subject.

No Busy, Wideawake Man

can afford to be without it! It is the greatest means of self-advancement ever prepared.

Another thing—it is now within reach of everybody! For a long while the great Encyclopaedia was held in limited editions at such high prices that it was found only in the homes of the rich. But modern methods of advertising and delivering books direct to readers have changed all this.

To-day the latest edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, complete with American Supplement, is sold at a fraction of former prices and on easy payments amounting to only

WAGNER LOOKS GOOD FOR CHICK'S INFIELD

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

A. H. C. Mitchell,
Baseball Specialist for the Boston American.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 6.—There is this to be said about Chick Stahl, the new manager of the Boston Americans: He is driving his men for all there is in them. His theory is, "Get sore quickly and get over it as soon as possible." Personally, he sets a pace that is hard to follow, except by the youngsters, who think not of the morrow. The special car that takes the players out to the ball field was on hand promptly at 9:45 yesterday morning, and Stahl hustled the men into it for the third day's practice. All hands are sore and stiff except Uncle Cy and Jesse Tannehill, the wise guys, who go about their business in their own way. Chick makes no attempt to hurry them, as he realizes that they know how to get themselves in condition.

But Uncle Cy is coming along much faster than anyone expected he would. As a matter of fact, the old fellow takes pretty violent exercise throughout the Winter, and when it comes Spring there are few muscles in his body that need stirring up. Cy took that long turn in the box for the second day's practice, and says he will lay off to-day and do another stunt to-morrow. Tannehill works long, but very carefully, taking absolutely no chances with his arm. Most of the balls he has served up to the batters have been of the easiest kind of lob.

Will Take a Week to Work Out Kinks.

The day was overcast for the second session on the diamond, and there was more or less of a chill wind. This, coupled with the fact that nearly everybody was sore and stiff, slowed up the work to a noticeable extent. But this was to be expected. It will take a week or ten days before the boys take out the kinks.

President John I. Taylor was limping around as a result of two days of violent exercise. He was out in uniform, however, and promises to stick it out with the rest. Freddy O'Connell, after two hours of morning work, was put completely out of business, and there are bets offered that he wears street clothes from this time on. Cy Young and Mike McGreevy, the Boston fan, had a great game of handball up against the grandstand. They used a tennis ball in lieu of the regulation article. The old fellow made Mike jump around in lively fashion.

The more one sees of young Wagner, the more one is impressed with his worth. Playing at shortstop, he made Hobe Ferris, who, as all Boston fans know, is something of a ground coverer, look slow in comparison. It is true that Hobe overtaxed himself the day before and was suffering in consequence, but the fact remains that Wagner played all around him. There didn't seem to be anything in the way of a difficult grounder that he was unable to negotiate. He wants to be in the field all the time, however, and not at the bat.

To Line Up Against Yanigans Next Week.

This young man played with Newark for a long time, but didn't get the proper show, and Manager Burnham finally sent him to Waterbury in the Connecticut League. Wagner started off like a whirlwind and in a short time led the league in batting. He became the talk of the league and Burnham quickly hauled him back to Newark, where he continued his fine work. If he continues to show as prominently as he has so far here, Parent will not be missed. Of course, Wagner hasn't the big league experience of Freddie, but he handles himself like an old timer, and with Collins and Ferris at either side of him, it seems as though little is to be feared in case Parent doesn't fall into line.

Manager Stahl promises to keep the boys at work at the present programme all the week. He will not call the regulars to line up against the Yanigans until next week.

The Little Rock team is expected to report for practice on March 16. After they get in shape they will play two or three games with the Bostons before the latter team leaves town.

JAKE STAHL IN CHICAGO TO GO INTO BUSINESS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, March 6.—Jake Stahl, manager of the Washington American League club last season, charges the management of the Washington and Boston clubs with breaking faith with him.

Stahl says that Manager Joe Cantillon and President T. C. Noyes of the Washington Club and Manager "Chick" Stahl and President John I. Taylor of the Boston team gave him word of honor that they would put through a trade for him at the recent schedule meeting of the American League in New York. The trade was not made and Stahl says positively he will not play in Washington, as he has told the Washingtons all along, and that he now is making preparations to go into business for himself here in Chicago.

DAWSON CAN HAVE MATCH

Tom Heuston, who is now filling a farewell engagement at Carey's Billiard Academy, will gladly give Ed Dawson a chance to meet him this week for any amount of side bet.

Heuston wants to play a long-ball game and make the match at 600 points, the afternoons and evenings to be mutually agreed upon.

Heuston is willing to put up $5,000 on himself if Dawson wants that amount, but he will have to come quick, as Heuston leaves for Pittsburg next week to begin training for his championship match with Keogh, which comes off in New York.

PRES. ELIOT IS UNFAVORABLE TO POPULAR SPORT

In his annual report, scheduled to be made public next Friday, President Eliot of Harvard continues to maintain that football, despite the new and so-called improved rules, remains an undesirable game for either gentlemen to play or multitudes of spectators to watch. Harvard's venerable and beloved president goes into lengthy and logical detail in many of his views of the game. He declares that football is properly described by the adjective "fierce," and that no game in which recklessness in causing or receiving bodily injury is held up for admiration is fit for college use. In the same class with football the president places basketball and hockey. He advises that intercollegiate contests in any one sport be limited to two games and that other games be between teams made up at Harvard. He decries the "excesses of cheering" which characterize present intercollegiate contests and condemns the large expenditures necessary for the support of football and baseball.

PEITZ NOT SATISFIED.

Heinie Peitz has made good his threat not to play ball at the salary offered him by the Louisville club, and has invested some of his spare cash in purchasing a saloon. Peitz feels that he has not been treated considerately by the Louisville club, and rather than play for the measly stipend that has been tendered him, he will handle high balls and their relatives in the thirst-quenching family, taking an occasional shy at catching with the better class of amateur teams.

IN MELLODY-THOMAS BOUT THERE WILL BE NO FAVORITE TO-NIGHT

By FORSYTHE.

Honey Mellody and Joe Thomas meet in a six-round fight at the National Athletic Club in Philadelphia to-night.

This is bound to be one of the most exciting bouts held in the Quaker City for over a year for more reasons than one.

In the first place, both Thomas and Mellody are in their prime. Neither dissipates to any extent, being what we call "clean living" fighters.

They have trained hard, as the result of the battle means much to both and neither shuffled in his work.

Neither of these has ever been mixed up in a fake, such as Tommy Ryan feeds the sports once in a while and we are assured of a fight on its merits.

The men have met before and there is a bit of feeling between the pair. Thomas knocked Mellody out in eleven rounds last year at Chelsea, and Honey has been anxious to wipe that defeat out, claiming that he was not in proper shape at the time.

Picking this fight is almost impossible, as the dope is strong on both boys, and either one has as good a chance as the other, except that Thomas has the one win to his credit.

Usually when one man beats another the loser is not the same when they meet for the second battle. Mellody is an exception to this rule, however. He has been beaten quite a number of times even before he held the title, and now seems to be fighting better than ever. His fight against Willie Lewis made such an impression on New Yorkers that they are almost afraid to bet against him. He just loves the sound of the gong, and the harder the going the better he seems to like it.

Thomas, on the other hand, is one of those strong fighting fellows who goes in to trade wallops and never seems to get the worst of it. He stands up to his man toe to toe, and swings away for dear life. You can imagine what will happen when these two get warmed up.

To-night will tell the tale.

AUTO SHOW EXHIBIT CARS ARE TIED UP

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Those dealers who exhibited at Portland and are bringing their exhibits back to Boston find themselves up against a pretty hard snag in regard to the cost of transportation. It is considered as excessively high, $16 being the charge on a single car, and when half a dozen are transported the cost is by no means a small item. Many of the local men realize this fact, and yet they can do nothing but pay the freight.

One dealer said yesterday that it cost him $64 to bring four cars back by freight or boat, and he could have done the same work for $50 by hiring a special car and sending all four machines back by express. The majority of the dealers have received notification of the arrival in the freight yards of their exhibits. Even with the cars in Boston it seems pretty difficult to get them unloaded so congested are the several freight yards, and that, too, despite the fact that both railroad and express companies have taken all the necessary precautions to get things through in quick season.

The work of decorating Mechanics Building for the Auto Show has been all but completed, and by to-morrow it will be possible for exhibitors to begin getting their cars in position. The carpet is almost all laid and the carpenters have all but completed the construction of the rails that divide the several spaces. There has been one general hustle all along the line, and, judging from the progress made yesterday, things will be in readiness in ample season for the opening of the show.

Bert Dingley has scored another record for the Pope-Hartford, he having driven a stock car in the fastest time recorded by all touring cars in the Pasadena-Altadena hill climb, a distance of one and four-tenths miles. His time was 2 minutes 38 seconds. T was 8 per average grade of the climb most fam . This hill climb is the and the re of California motor events, achieved speaks for itself.

Post & L er of Hartford will establish a Boston ch on March 15, this being the second a chain of three establishments to conducted in New England. As the loc representative, the firm has secured E. Thompson, admittedly one of the mos capable auto supply men in this section Mr. Thompson will have as his assista M. E. Lebon and Walter Clapp, Jr., both of whom know the trade and are popular.

Louis J. Sackett, who has become identified with Smith & Mabley as the agency manager, is spending a few days in this city, and may possibly remain over the show. He has with him a fine model of the S. & M. Simplex, and also one of the Isotta Fraschini, the latter the Italian car which created such a sensation at the recent New York exhibit. Mr. Sackett is likewise looking for a local agent for both of these cars.

WELSHMAN AND TIGER WIN BLANKETS ON SPEEDWAY

While a couple of races were decided at the Charles River Speedway, yet another fall of snow is required before the sport can be continued, as the horses now strike through to bare ground when going at speed, making it really dangerous and difficult, too, for them to keep to their gait.

Jimmy Fitzgerald started the fun going by tackling "Happy Jack" Trout for a race between Vesper and Pertlene, the loser to buy the best hat in Boston for the victor. It was best three heats in five. Trout had Walter May's trotter in good trim, winning the race and hat off the reel. The fastest heat was in 37 seconds.

W. J. Furbush, with Sir George, and his brother Al., with Loma, got together for the other contest. It required three heats to decide the better trotter, but the former delivered the goods finally by taking the first and third trips. The last was close to almost the finish, when Loma made a break. Best heat was 34½ seconds.

The racing committee has decided that the blanket offered by W. D. Hunt for the best trotter has been won by Walter J. Bates's gelding, Welshman, while the blanket for pacers offered by West Furbush goes to Tiger, the property of William LaCroix. The Bryson cup for pacers will adorn the mantel in the parlor of Al. Furbush's domicile, he having won the majority of races with Mercury Wilkes; that is, unless there is more sleighing.

The news that Fred Morrill, owner of Norvet, 2:13¼, is critically ill was learned by the members with sincere regret and the hope that a more favorable report will be received to-day.

Secretary Hunt expressed the idea that the coming season will find the racing days changed from Fridays, as has been the case, to Tuesdays each week. This is to permit the members belonging to the Dorchester Driving Club the opportunity of racing their horses in the matinees over the Franklin Field Speedway on Saturdays.

Last evening Chipman Hall, Tremont Temple, was filled with the members of the "Mets" and their ladies. An elaborate musical programme was rendered with pleasing effect to all present.

PEIL IS UNKNOWN.

The signed contract of William Peil, a young infielder, was received by President Herrmann of the Cincinnati club. Peil is the mysterious player whose identity has been puzzling the searchers for base ball information for some time and for whom negotiations have been on for some weeks. Peil has had no professional experience, having gained his fame with independent teams in and around New York city. He is highly recommended by John M. Ward.

MELLODY IS ON HAND FOR FIGHT TONIGHT

Special to the Boston American.

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—Honey Mellody, with his trainers and manager, John Mooney, arrived in town this morning, and any doubts of his not coming to fight Joe Thomas at the National Club to-night were put to route.

Mellody looked like a fine fighting machine and his appearance did not belie his words which were to the effect that he was ready to put up the battle of his life.

Not only is Mellody anxious to defeat Thomas, but also to change the feeling against him that he sidestepped a fight arranged for him through some misunderstanding last Summer.

While Mellody expressed himself as perfectly satisfied that he would take Thomas' measure inside the limit of six rounds, the Californian has made such a good impression here that local fans figure that Mellody will have to go some to get any the best of it.

There is little doubt that both boys will go on the scales at 3 o'clock and weigh in under 145 pounds, the mark called for as they have put up large forfeits in that direction.

The sale of seats has been one of the largest in the Quaker fighting burg for a long time as the fans want to see what the champion welterweight looks like in action.

A big delegation is expected from New York, as Billy Oliver, manager of Tommy Murphy, has made arrangements to bring over all the Gotham sports on a special, and there will be many who want to see the conqueror of Willie Lewis.

Both boys being tough fighters the general opinion prevails that the bout will go the limit.

YALE FRESHMEN HAVE BASEBALL DATES

NEW HAVEN, Ct., March 6.—Yale freshmen yesterday announced their baseball schedule for the season. It consists of seventeen games, six away from home. The usual game with Hill School is omitted, while games are scheduled with both Andover and Exeter. The usual game with the Columbia freshmen has been replaced by a game with the Pennsylvania freshman team.

SPORTS TOLD IN BRIEF

BASEBALL.

Dan Chesaro, a brother of the famous Jack of the Highlanders, is in Boston and wants to pitch on some strong team. He is the image of the spit ball artist and weighs 160 pounds.

Rube Vickers, who has signed with the Athletics, is working out with the Giants at Los Angeles, where he has been all Winter.

Irve Wilhelm, the Boston National discard, is making a great hit with the Birmingham, Southern League, team. He made a record of a no-hit game last season and it has made his reputation.

With Joe Tinker of the Cubs out of commission and George Davis of the Sox staying away from the Spring practice the two Chicago clubs are without their crack regular short fielders.

Over in St. Louis they are shedding no tears at the departure of Catcher Branch Rickey, the Ohio boy. Rickey is classed as a good mechanical man, but a slow thinker. The Mound City fans may think they are slow themselves after Rickey gets to shining in good company.

After prying open the lid of the season in such sensational fashion at Los Angeles, Jeffries sat on the New York players' bench all through the game. Jeffries never looked better. Eddie Graney says all Jeffries needs is a shave and he can lick all the fighters they can turn out against him.

Clarence Beaumont has informed Manager Clarke of the Pirates that he will never play ball again. Beaumont finds that his legs won't stand training, and so will devote himself to chicken farming in Wisconsin.

At least three of the Reds' twirler candidates are over six feet tall, while two others—Charlie Hall and Jack Kennedy—approach near that mark. The six-footers are Coakley, Ewing and Minahan. These, with Jack McLean measuring 6 feet 5½ inches in height and John Ganzel going over the 6-foot mark, gives the team quite a solid front, so far as big men are concerned.

To avoid the clamor of the fans and to get away from the old home umpire idea President Morton of the O. & P. League has determined not to appoint an umpire from a city of the league. This ruling cuts off Sam Wise, who held a berth last year and wanted to get back this year. Sam Wise, as fair and square an umpire as ever donned a mask, was accused by the fans in other cities with Akron playing of favoring his townsmen. Manager West's men used to say they would rather play with any other man than Wise working, but the fans saw it the other way.

BOXING.

Jack Johnson won another fight in Australia, beating the Victorian champ, Lang, in nine rounds before 15,000 spectators. At that rate the States wont be big enough for Lil Arthur and Manager Aleck McLean.

Matty Baldwin has started training with Danny Duane and George McFadden in New York for a fifteen-round contest with Rouse O'Brien. The bout is to take place before the Rhode Island A. C. on March 11. O'Brien recently beat Jack Goodman and has a decision over Baldwin. The boys are to meet at 128 pounds ringside and as Baldwin only weighed 130 when he started to train he should have little trouble in making the weight.

On Friday night Young Peter Jackson is billed to fight Joe Jeanette of New York, in the windup at the Spring Garden Athletic Club of Philadelphia.

"Cyclone" Thompson disposed of Rufe Turner in eleven rounds at Marysville, Cal., last week the comparison between his career and that of "Battling" Nelson has been again brought to attention. Like Nelson, Thompson was underrated in his home State of Illinois, went to the far West and made good in glorious style. Some day these two will meet and the fans will see a battle that will be a hummer.

When Mike Donovan of Rochester, N. Y., appears at the Casco Athletic Club next Monday night in Portland with Billy Rhodes, the Kansas boxer, the sports of the Forest City will see the one man in the East that has been able to hold his own with Joe Thomas, the doughty California boxer. Donovan held him to a draw in the Middle West for ten rounds last Summer. Donovan is regarded as one of the cleverest welterweights in the business and his long record is evidence of his fitness to qualify against the best. The match with Rhodes looks like the very best and most evenly paired team that has ever been presented to the Maine sports.

HIRED GIRL IN PLOT TO KILL

LONOIR, N. C., March 6.—The testimony of a fifteen-year-old mountain girl, Omey Green, is expected to send two men, John Vickers and Hamp Kendall, to the gallows.

At their trial she said while on the witness stand:

"They gave me money to lure Lawrence to the place where he was killed."

The men are being tried for the murder of Lawrence Nelson, who was shot to death four miles from here last November. His body was not found until ten weeks later.

COURT BARS U. S. FLAG FROM BEER

WASHINGTON, March 6.—State laws prohibiting the use of the United States flag for advertising were upheld by the United States Supreme Court in the case of Nicholas V. Halter and Henry V. Hayward, who appealed from the Supreme Court of Nebraska.

Halter and Hayward were convicted of selling beer in bottles decorated with the national colors. They pleaded the unconstitutionality of the law.

WIN GLORY AS CLOWNS, 'LEGIT' AND FARMERS

Career of Trio Playing at Globe Theatre Reads More Like a Novel.

From the circus ring, as clowns, to the stage as stars, with an enormous sugar beet farm as a side issue—this is the story of Bickel, Watson and Wrothe, who are playing this week at the Globe Theatre.

Their collective history reads like a novel and is as interesting. They are natives of Michigan, and while still in short trousers they "got a job" with a circus, doing a clown stunt. George, Harry and Ned, as they were then known, made good at the start. They got $8 per week each and "provided," and determined to save some portion of their money each week, and let the future take care of itself.

The three boys, unlike many circus performers, succeeded in keeping with shows that had a weekly "ghost," and their savings climbed as did their salary.

Finally they gave up the circus business to go into vaudeville, still as the same fun-making trio, but with new business. They "made good" in vaudeville, were picked up by A. H. Wood and put into the "legit," their comedy being called "Tom, Dick and Harry."

Meanwhile they had saved their money and bought a farm of 2,800 acres around Saginaw and Bay City, Mich. This they planted with sugar beets and now give their Summers to its management. One of the million dollar sugar factories is located near their farm, so they have a ready market for all the beets they can raise.

The success of this trio is an excellent example of the fact that "sticking to it," saving money and delivering "the goods" is sure to be successful in the end.

Fighting the Piano Trust

The name "Piano Trust" sounds big, looks powerful and frightens a good many small piano dealers. They wouldn't dare to cut the price on a "Piano Trust" instrument. We have been cutting their prices for months—cutting—slashing—and actually slaughtering their prices, and have been whipping the Big Piano Trust representatives in every N. E. State. We confess that we are making no money doing it, but we are still in the ring and selling almost any make of high-grade pianos, new or second-hand, at prices that make the big Piano Trust sick.

The People ONLY Should Be Monopolists

Monopolies, Greater Than Any Yet Dreamed Of, Will Be Owned by THE PEOPLE, and Managed FOR Them

When THE PEOPLE own a monopoly—such as the postoffice—the entire nation is made more prosperous. Absence of competition makes it possible to concentrate all effort on GOOD SERVICE, instead of using up effort in chicanery and overreaching.

When private INDIVIDUALS own a monopoly, such as the railroads, the entire nation is disturbed and robbed. Absence of competition makes it possible to concentrate all effort on more thorough exploitation of the people, on shameful watering of stocks upon which business, labor and population must pay dividends.

In a monopoly owned by the people and honestly managed all effort is aimed at SERVING THE PEOPLE. Is not that clear?

In a monopoly PRIVATELY owned and selfishly managed all effort is directed toward EXPLOITING the people. That has been made quite plain in recent railroad and trust exposures.

Monopolies to-day are private concerns, and their managers are called successful and are highly rewarded according to their ability to enrich private individuals at the public expense.

The monopolies of the future—and there will be many of them—owned BY THE PEOPLE, MANAGED FOR THE PEOPLE, will enrich the nation, facilitate legitimate, private business and enterprise, add to life's comfort, increase the purchasing power of the honestly earned dollar.

We want you, if you please, to consider ONE such monopoly—which should be the first of the great nation-owned monopolies.

It would be a monopoly of THE MEANS OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN HUMAN MINDS.

Formerly, man's only way of communicating with his absent friend was by means of the letter post. Government recognized quite early the importance of letting men communicate with each other as freely and as cheaply as possible, without possibility of private espionage.

The postoffice, everywhere, became as a matter of course a GOVERNMENT FUNCTION, managed for the people only (except in our sweet land, where it is robbed by privately owned railroads).

To-day, however, a man's inventive genius multiplies means of communication. Those powers of communication are essential to life, and we must have soon, as a great monopoly owned by the people, a government service combining

POSTOFFICE,

TELEPHONES,

TELEGRAPH, including wireless telegraph, and any other methods of communication that invention may develop.

All individuals inventing or improving on means of communication should be, of course, richly rewarded, paid most generously. At present such inventors are usually killed with disappointment or robbed of their brainwork.

Think what it would mean in saving and service to combine the postoffice, telegraph and telephone.

RENT—in each small town and even village RENT IS PAID in three places, the postoffice, the telegraph office, the telephone office. All these have separate buildings, and THE PEOPLE PAY THE RENT OF ALL THREE.

With cheap telephones, cheap telegraph and cheap parcels post, human beings would be brought into immediate contact with each other at the lowest possible cost and at great profit to the national treasury—provided the people decided to tax themselves in THAT way, rather than by direct taxation.

In every little house there would be a telephone, as at present in Sweden, where under government ownership the telephone is in every farm at a nominal charge.

The government postoffice, telegraph office and telephone office would be all together. The telegram would be immediately sent to its address OVER THE LOCAL TELEPHONE, and telegrams could be sent AT A PROFIT for six cents where they now cost TWENTY-FIVE or more, and every employe could be better paid than at present.

The postoffice rural or city delivery would deliver the written text of the telegram for reference—AFTER IT HAD BEEN TELEPHONED.

On this one combination you would save for the people, WHO PAY ALL BILLS IN THE END, the telephone rent, the telegraph rent, the delivery of telegrams by special messenger. That is only the beginning of it. We have now TWO PRIVATE TELEGRAPH SYSTEMS, nominally competing, but in reality combining—even as to details of race track gambling. These two companies maintain separate offices—THE PEOPLE PAY the rent for them.

And then, THINK OF THE SAVING IN WIRES AND POLES. Now all over the country there must be one set of poles for telephone concerns, or two where there are rival companies. A set of poles for each of the telegraph companies. One government SET would take the place of the four. Splendid conduits could be built by government, safe from storm, sleet and snow. Things would be done THOROUGHLY and permanently, no longer in the present barbarous way.

We outline this one suggestion for a nation-owned monopoly very roughly. You can fill in the details.

It is to be hoped that no reader will be thoughtless enough to suggest that such a combination would be bad "because it would put some people out of work."

That cry is as old and foolish as human stupidity. A man who invented a sewing machine—long ago, before the thing was perfected—was told by his wife that he would put poor sewing women out of work and was persuaded to break up his model. As a matter of fact the sewing machine employs now TEN women for every one that formerly worked with the needle. Clothing is made cheaper for all, and the machine workers are far better paid than the needle workers.

Waste of human labor is ALWAYS A CRIME. To have three men doing the work of one is a tax on all the people, for, as we know, THEY PAY ALL BILLS IN THE END.

The labor union man or other who thinks it is a good thing to prevent economy in labor is simply dull minded. He knows nothing about the interests of his own class or of the people generally.

But a government combination and monopoly such as we have outlined, while stopping useless and WASTED labor, would, as a matter of fact, give work to scores of thousands more than the total number now employed, and give this work AT FAR BETTER WAGES.

The entire country would be covered with wires—every little home would have its telephone—where the busy wife could do her marketing by wire.

There would be thousands of additional mechanics needed, thousands of additional operators. Women would be paid decently by the government, instead of being underpaid by a private monopoly. Men rendering faithful service would be protected in their work.

However, it is only necessary to remind our readers of the great objection to the steam railroad, which was this:

"If one engine can haul as much as a thousand horses," the ignorant asked, "what is to become of the poor stage coach drivers and horse cleaners put out of jobs?"

The railroads employ a thousand men where the stage coach employed one—and the engine driver is paid like a human being. He is not a half-frozen, half-paid curiosity, like the stage coach driver.

Readers, there is great power and great wealth in MONOPOLY. We learn that—as we learn all things—from private individuals.

But we shall apply that knowledge eventually—and soon, let us hope—to the profit of all the people.

The people alone will be monopolists, and the profit of national monopoly will make a rich, prosperous NATION, instead of making rich BRIBE-GIVING, nation-swindling individuals.

Success Comes to Those Who Watch for Their Opportunities and Are Quick to Seize Them

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner.

A MAN past middle age descended from an incoming train in a narrow passage leading to a large depot. He had occupied a rear car, and over one hundred people were in front of him when he reached the passage. Only two persons could walk abreast, and the high railing on one side and the train on the other made it necessary to keep to the narrow exit.

The man had important engagements awaiting him. He was well bred, a gentleman, and considered the little courtesies of life.

Yet without violating one of these he reached the depot and the trolley car first of all those hundred people.

Watch Your Chances

HE watched his chances and availed himself of them.

A woman in the line at his left dropped her parcel and stooped to recover it. He slipped in front of her without delaying any one in either line of march.

A man on the right paused to shift his baggage from the right hand to the left, and this made another opening. Still another stopped the whole procession to question a train official leaning from a car window, but instead of stopping with the procession our traveler pushed ahead and found a clear space which soon enabled him to reach the trolley car two or three moments in advance of the first man who had descended from the train. He had moved rapidly, quietly, decently and without once inconveniencing a fellow traveler.

No doubt scores of passengers from the rear cars explained their tardy arrival at home and at places of business as due to the procession in front of them.

The Rear Car

THIS same man had began life in the rear car. He had been a poor child on a Western prairie, without influence and with meagre opportunities for education.

Yet, by this inborn trait, this determination to watch his opportunities and push ahead, he obtained an education and a desirable position in life before middle age—obtained it through his own efforts.

Many of his old comrades are living in the same meagre environment of early youth, believing they were hindered by fate from attaining success.

They regard the good fortune of their old acquaintance as a stroke of luck.

"He was born to be lucky," they will tell you. "Things naturally went his way."

But they went his way merely because he watched his chance and slipped ahead when the opening came.

These chances come to every one of us along the highway of life. If we are not on the lookout the line closes up before we see the open space.

Success From Within

EVERY day I live I perceive more and more clearly how the real success of life comes from within and not from without. An intense, unswerving, fixed purpose dominates all conditions. The mind which concentrates itself upon the one idea, I Must Do This Thing, does it eventually, no matter what obstacles intervene.

The mind which says, "The procession is so long ahead of me, it is useless for me to try to hurry; I must just jog along"—that is the mind which never gets beyond the jogging pace. The procession is always ahead.

A score of times it separates, opens, clears, but the man who says, "It is no use," is not watching and does not see his opportunities.

And he dies at the rear of the column, believing "he has had no chance."

We all have it. Few of us see it. Fewer still seize it.
